What's El Capitan?

By Kim White

Who? What? When? Where? Why? How? Simple questions evoking complex answers as we entered the 1985-86 school year. The "what," "who," "where," and "when," is easy. We are the Vaqueros, high school students at El Capitan High School in 1986. So far so good.

The "why" was the difficult one. "Why" required that we have a motivation, a reason. Our answers became obvious. El Capitan's positive image emerged stronger than ever before because of our excellent scholastic records, entertainment talents, and athletic achievements. Our accomplishments gave us a sense of "we've made it."

The "how" was created by studying, performing, and practicing. We felt good about ourselves and our school.

Our school spirit extended beyond ourselves to the world around us. We came to the aid of the Mexican earthquake victims, adopted Mexican orphans, and helped three needy families during the holiday season. We weren't afraid to share our time, energy, and dollars.

Our efforts, accomplishments, and involvements have been recognized and applauded beyond the campus. This year San Diego, San Diego County, and Lakeside have taken notice that such accomplishments are typical of El Capitan. What's El Capitan?

An El Capitan Fantasyland . . .

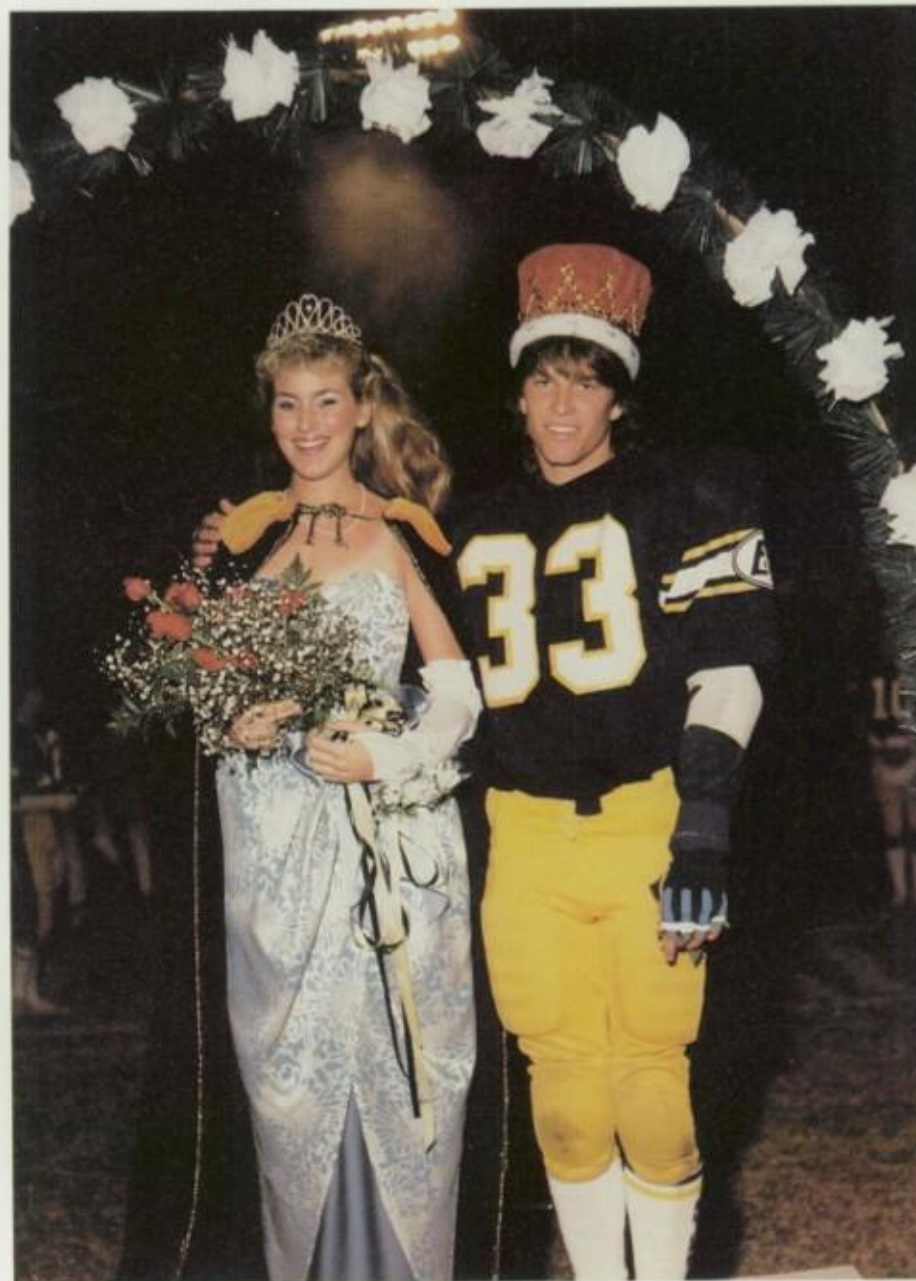

What It Meant In 1985

Homecoming is a special time of the year. The graduated classes return, parents watch and the community takes part," stated Commissioner of Student Affairs, Karen Ransweiler.

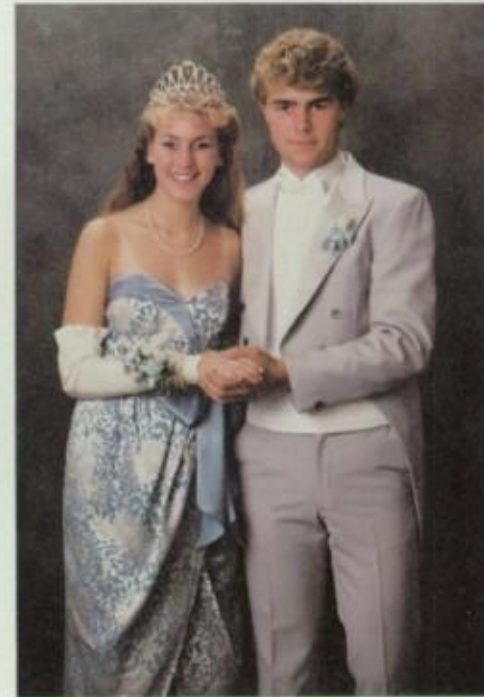

Planning for this occasion began prior to the school year with the establishment of the theme. The ASB decided the floats were to be designed accordingly around fables, children's books, or other "fantasy" type stories. The freshman created The Little Woman Who Lived In A Shoe; the sophomores portrayed Cinderella, the juniors presented The Wizard of Oz, and the winning float, Alice in Wonderland was created by the seniors.

But the floats were only a small part of the festivities; the crowning of the King and Queen was anxiously awaited by all. The 1984 King and Queen, David Nowlan and Heather Artzer, attended Homecoming to fulfill the legacy of the crowning. Battling the harsh wind, emcee John Kemp announced Jeff Hoss and Amy Fishburn as the lucky winners. Fireworks, purchased through funds donated by the students, filled the sky as Jeff and Amy took their victory ride.

"I would like to commend Karen Ransweiler on a job well done. Homecoming is the deciding element to each school year. If Homecoming goes well, the school is spirited the rest of the year," commented Dan Plough. Spirit was never more evident than at the spirit contest against Helix, pep assemblies, and other sporting events. Homecoming 1985 was the starting point of a spirited and successful school year.

Fulfilling a tradition, newly crowned King and Queen, Jeff Hoss and Amy Fishburn, eagerly await their victory ride around El Capitan Stadium.

When A Concert Is More Than A Concert . . .

By Cindy Noriega and Kristine Stanzick

France, a four man band, performed at two assemblies to promote their evening rock concert in Foster gym September 26th.

They played the current hit songs of many artists and had a knack for involving the audience in their music and their message. Their broad musical range has allowed France to perform at Lehr's Greenhouse, a popular night spot, and have their album played on radio stations 91X and KGB.

France offered teenagers a strong anti-drug and alcohol abuse message. The message was not a lecture to scare kids but more like a piece of friendly advice geared to assist in the decision to do or not to do drugs. France sang Never Surrender by Corey Hart with a subtle interpretation to avoid drugs.

So much of the current music seems to exert a negative influence rather than a positive one. France had sensible lyrics and a beneficial message. Couple this with their talent for performing and rapport with audiences and success seems assured for themselves and their listeners.

Keeping the beat, Mark, the drummer and a singer for France, controls the tempo in Corey Hart's Never Surrender.

Performing Born In the USA, Brian, singer and keyboardist, does his best to do justice to the Boss.

Sharing his excitement for the Summer of 69, Dave invites the crowd to enjoy their own memories of summers past.

The loss of a close friend due to drug abuse spurred the lead singer of France, Sammy, to send use his own personal message against drugs and alcohol.

With A Rebel Yell, Dave introduces Brian who will perform the next number, Don't Stand In the Shadows, by Billy Idol.

With romance in his eyes and a song on his lips, Mark serenades Nicole Dreis with Paul Young's Every Time You Go Away.

The Look Of The Year

By Kristine Stanzick

Fad: a temporary, popular manner of conduct.

Fashion: a prevailing style of dress.
SYN: mode, vogue.

Where does "it" come from, this prevailing style or look that people try to achieve? It comes from all around the world and from many different manufacturers but we do have "it," that modern sense of dress, at El Capitan.

Wandering across campus one will see the die-hard labels of Levi-Strauss and Nike — taking a closer look reveals newer labels such as Guess, Jag, Reebok, and Ton Sur Ton. The look of jeans and t-shirts was not overtaken but stood beside the buttoned, long-sleeve shirts, bolas and broaches worn by the more "modern" crowd. There was also an androgenous feel to some styles. For example, paisley prints and flowered patterns in every form were worn by both sexes.

Accessories were also very popular this fashion season. There was the ever-famous Swatch watch worn by groups of people. There was also the generic-type "Swatches" with names like Watcha and Awatch. Suspenders, whether worn over the shoulders or hanging down from the waist, were a different type of accessory. They appeared in every color and print (even paisley).

Seen on many females was gobs of jewelry inspired by stars like Madonna and Cyndi Lauper. Ranging from rhinestones to ancient Indian jewelry, it was the seasons most apparent accessory.

A fashion boom was obvious. Though normally we have been considered "traditional," there emerged a new and different sense of style. El Capitan moved with the fashion trends. Why? Because El Cap has blossomed to accept every type of style, dress, and attitude. It has brand names, non-brand names, and in general a fashion of it's own.

Yet another look at fads and fashions. Here, Mike Detweiler models his leather jacket with studs and chains that portrays his faction of El Cap.

SENIORS

The How And Why Of '86

By Kim White

How did the senior class combine productivity with good time? The major fundraiser of the year was the auctioning of parking spots. The purchase of a spot guaranteed the owner that no matter how late he was, he'd always have a place to park. Throughout the school year, Scott Murray, Geoff Adams, and Mike Hinson were out early Friday mornings and on the quad during lunch selling a variety of bagels. They often turned into a side-show with their attention grabbers and hard sell techniques. Robin Stansburg, Rachel Brawdy, Frances Carrillo, and Tammy Hicks worked extremely hard to create a festive atmosphere for the Christmas Dance. The dance, with the theme "White Christmas," was actually turned into a money making event by astute planning from the officers.

What did the seniors look forward to? As the year progressed the Prom was on everyone's mind increasingly. Whether it was being on the decorating committee, selling bids, or just attending, almost the entire class became involved one way or another. That in itself proved that the event and the year was a smashing success.

"Hard guys" Scott Murray and Geoff Adams take a moment from their Bio 3-4 homework to show their enthusiasm for the Class of '86.

Who's Standing Above The Rest?

by Kim White

The process of selecting senior standouts concentrates on the question "who?" This year many more people were included in the answer due to an innovative nominating process. The senior class chose four individuals per category. The final selection was made from these four. With more students recognized, it shows just how much the class of '86 really stands out.

Who's That Senior?

Who is Brian Boggess and what has he done? After speaking to him and having him answer a few written questions, I was impressed with his sincerity and depth, — and writing skill. My questions were directed toward his athletic achievements and his feelings about them. Clearly, he has aspirations other than those that are evident on the field. It was obvious that his story was best told in his own words. El Capitan, this is Brian Boggess as told by Brian Boggess.

Brian began participating in competitive athletics when he felt he was ready to accept the responsibility.

Upon entering high school, I avoided sports and the people who tried to push me into athletics because I felt I had more potential in academics; I didn't want my studies to suffer. My attitude changed when I was introduced to track and field by Coach Joe Brooks during my freshmen year. I found I could specialize in an event and excel through my own individual effort. I could put into it what I wanted to put. I realized my efforts were worthwhile and showing good results, so I made a true commitment. Since then I have been able to make another such commitment to football.

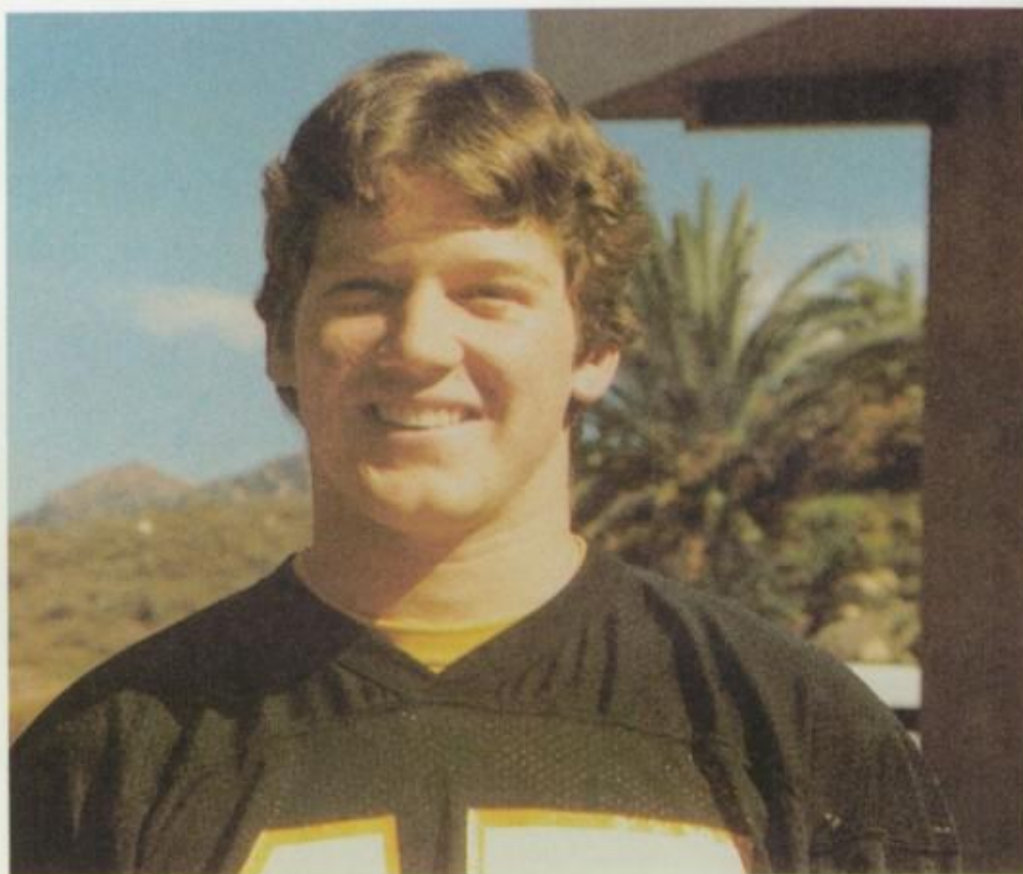

Brian has received much satisfaction from his athletic endeavors.

Success has a lot to do with my being able to answer the question: What do I expect to get out of this? For some, that answer may be in terms of a specific goal: a personal record of distance, time, or numbers of yards. But, for me, it was to strive to learn a technique, to train my body a certain way, and to learn how to be competitive. Most of my success, I feel, comes from the part of me that wants to win in competition.

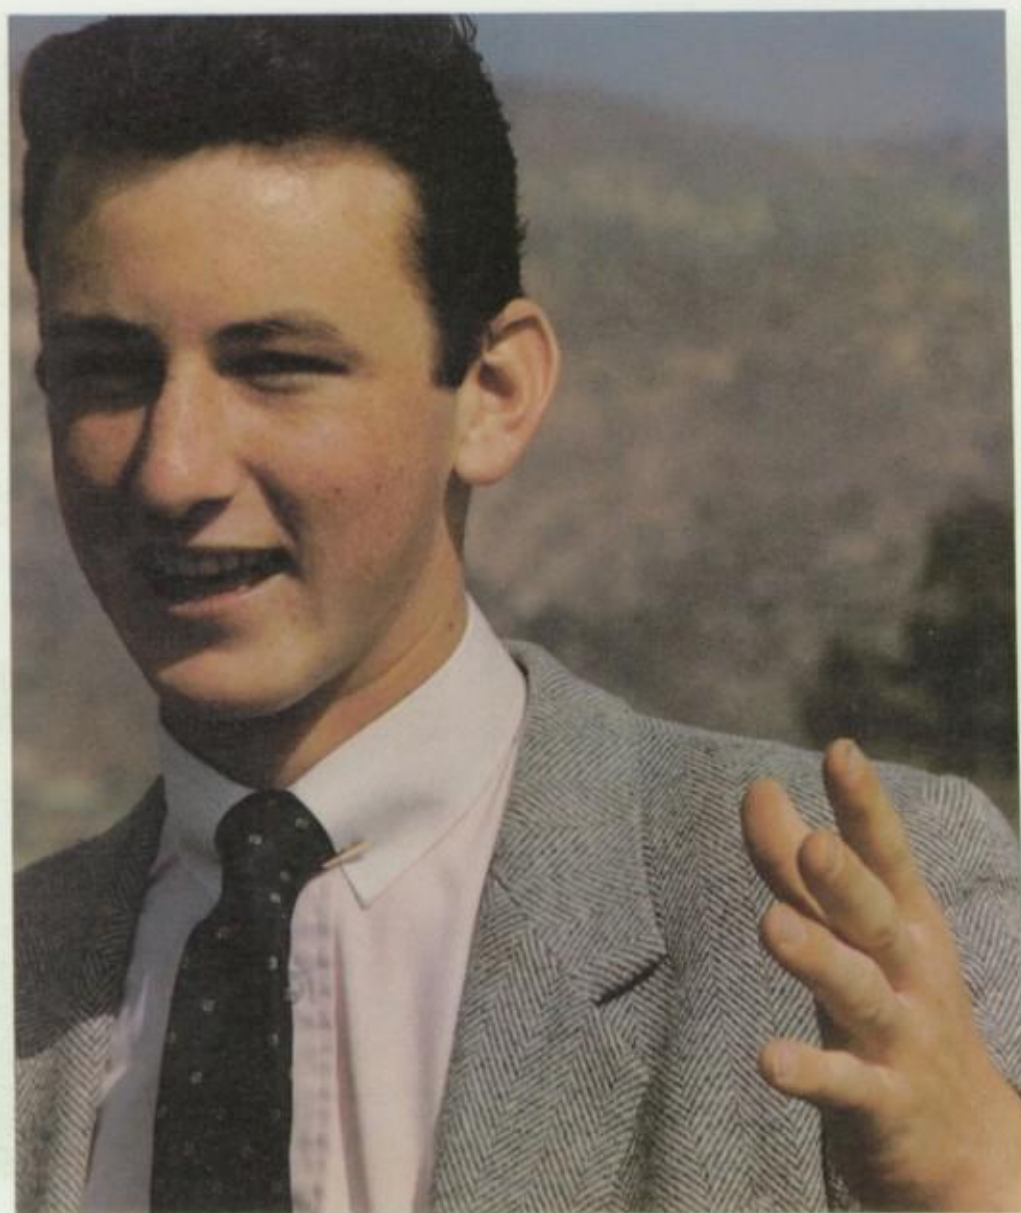

Though Brian is successful at most everything he does, he does have his favorites.

My favorite sport is track and field, not because I, perhaps, have been more successful there or because I have participated longest in track, but I relate to the diversity of events found in track and how it seems possible that a certain event may have been invented "just for you."

Now, you might think Brian is one perfect individual. However, he does have his human characteristics. One of the most embarrassing events of his life occurred when he called a friend on the phone and mistook his older sister's voice for his. There is hope for the rest of us.

Brian Boggess

Richard Balk

Who's That Senior?

By Matt Barlow

With one glance, you can tell Richard Balk is truly a step above the rest. His attire, a suit jacket and tie, sets the stage for his business-like etiquette. Richard's endeavors on and off campus are preparing him to be a successful entrepreneur. Richard admits, "There is absolutely no limit to our potential in life; the responsibility is ours to set goals and achieve them."

In today's work force, young people find part time employment to satisfy the needs of money for their activities. Balk, it seems, is not working for the money; but for something more, namely experience. Richard, 18 and currently employed at Kinney's shoes, has broken an eight year old accessory sales record once held by an Assistant Manager. For his extraordinary efforts in the sales force, he has been awarded "Employee of the Month" by his demanding manager. Not only is Richard a top salesman at Kinney's, but he doubles as a new car sales representative. Recently employed at Select-A-Car, Richard sets up complicated sales and leases for prospective customers.

Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA). The club teaches students marketing and distributive skills, and Richard is an extremely active member. He has been involved in DECA for three years, and was elected president for two of them. Richard, along with advisor Mace Williamson, has developed El Capitan competitions. He has increased his chapter's membership 100% by "getting DECA into the public eye with enthusiasm and knowledge." He has attended various conferences nation-wide, receiving many awards (Third in Entrepreneurship), while running for State President and Western Region Vice President.

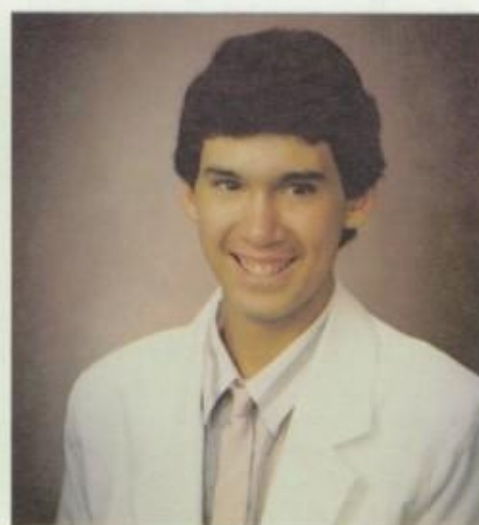

"To be a success, to me, is to be the best person in your chosen profession," states Richard, whose speaking skills are superior. He has exhibited his expertise in speech by being named "Best Speaker" by Toastmasters, a top speaking organization. This speaking ability enhances Richard's exceptional sales technique. When asked about his secrets of selling Richard comments, "Human Relations is the Key. Keep a positive self image, and don't be afraid to fail. Without failure, there can be no knowledge. That is true in life as well." With all of the success that has come his way, Richard compliments two people for his fortunes. "If it weren't for my father's and Mace Williamson's guidance, I would still be a DECA diamond in the rough."

The parking lot looks as if there is plenty of room but only because it is late in the afternoon and most people are gone for the day. WHO'S THAT SENIOR?

By Debra Roberts

Many students look forward to their senior year to be that "kick back" kinda year. Not so with Frances Carrillo. She is actively involved in school activities and two jobs.

Playing a part in many school activities, Frances doesn't have a typical school day. She has been involved with Allusions for two years. This year is her second year in ASB, and she did sophomore publicity and now senior publicity. Frances just doesn't join clubs, she takes an active part in them. In ASB she has done silk screen posters, painted Christmas scenes on school windows, helped with the Homecoming float, and designed the senior t-shirts.

Other than school activities, Frances has established her own graphics business. She excels most in non-objective designing. For promotions, Frances talks to managers in stores and says that she would like to paint murals or scenes on their store windows. Frances shows the people coloring books as examples of what she can draw and paint. One of her favorite scenes that she painted was Mickey and Minnie Mouse in a sleigh, with Pluto pulling it.

Frances hasn't searched for a job involving graphics in a well known business because, she comments, "I'm not good with deadlines, and I don't want to work under anyone."

Besides her own business, Frances works an average of twenty hours a week at Cap't Kids.

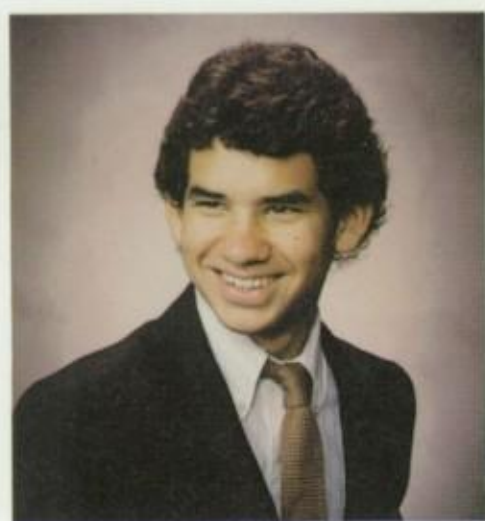

Frances Carrillo has devoted much of her spare time to El Cap, and has rightly won the title of Most School Spirit.

FACULTY

Back To The Basics

By Kim White

Have you ever had troubles mastering a subject? Did you ever wish that there was someone to help you? If you have ever had any of these problems you can appreciate the special need for those students who have difficulty with basic English and math skills.

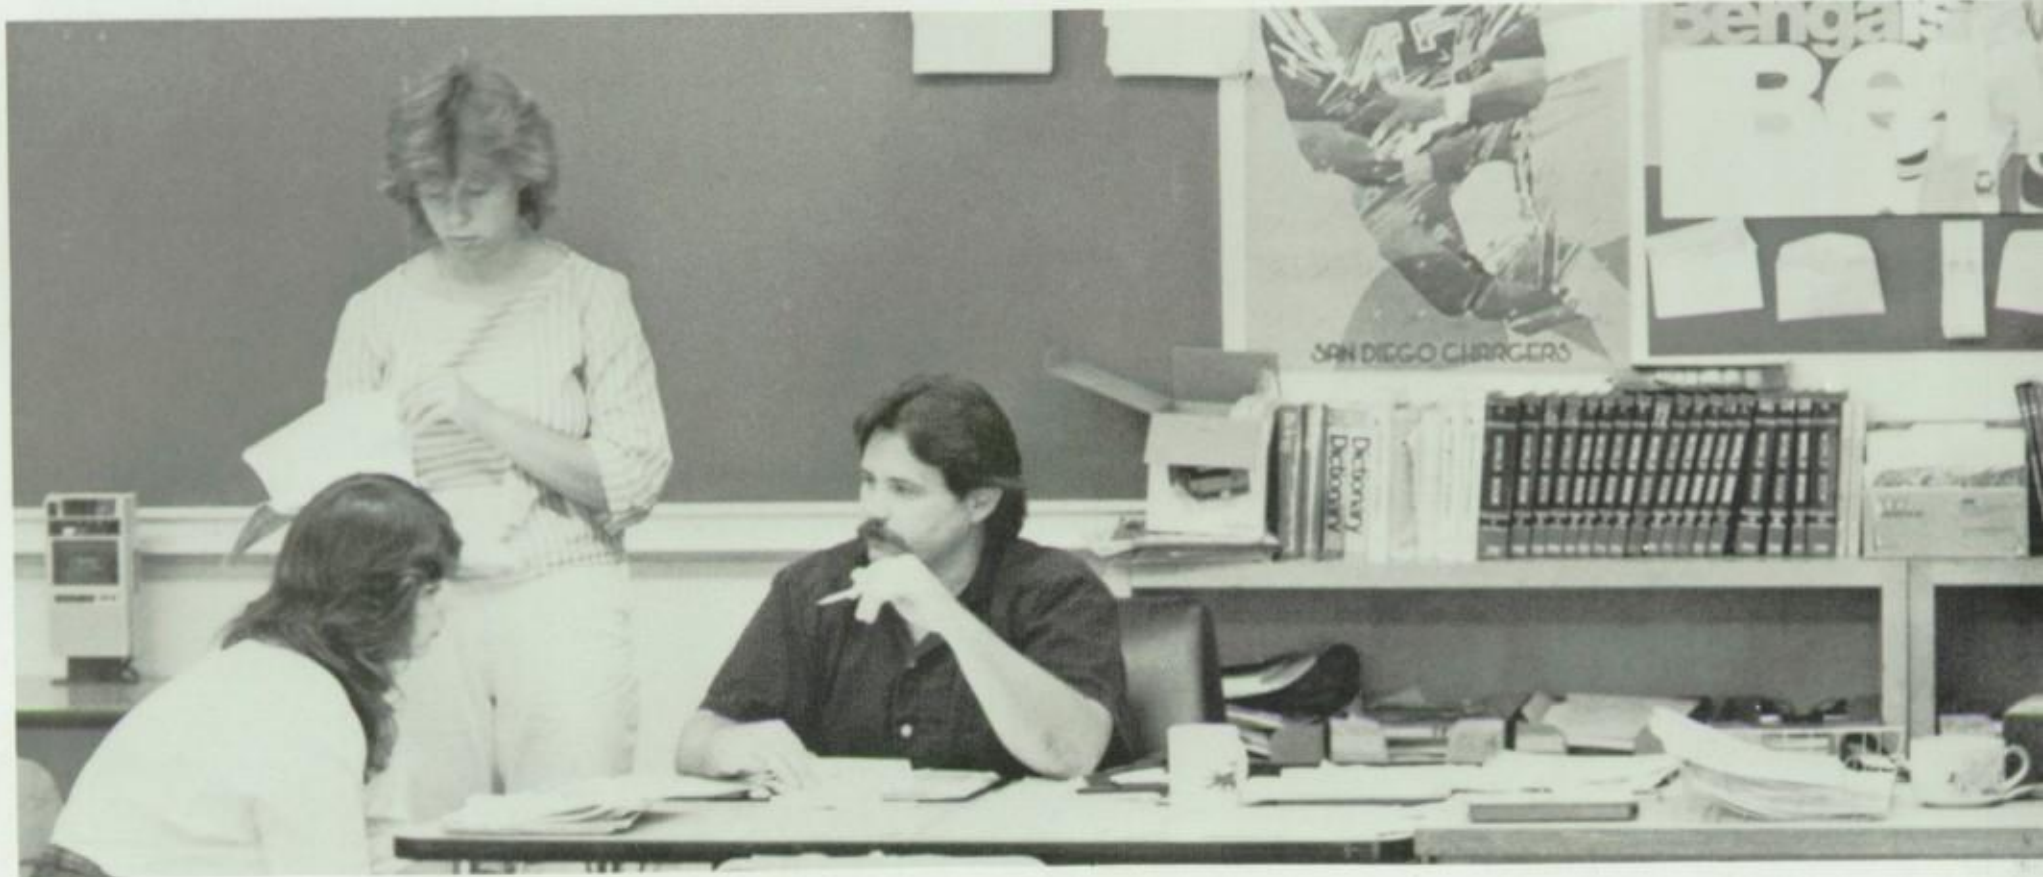

With a low student to teacher ratio, the Special Education instructors administer the special one-on-one attention that many students need.

A student could have received instruction for one or two periods or spent close to the entire school day in the personalized classroom.

The Special Education department is helping all of El Capitan's students reap the benefits of a sound education.

Dressing up as professionals, Joan Bonnell, Nancy Rhodes, and Jane Nolan amuse the students with their realistic interpretations on Halloween.

With his aide Mary Reed, who has worked with him for five years, Special Education teacher Mr. Miller discusses grades for the students' progress reports.

Everyone likes to see the results of their hard labor immediately. If you were enrolled in a mechanics class you might not only see the results, you might drive them home. Students are allowed to work on their own vehicles while obtaining credit in the course.

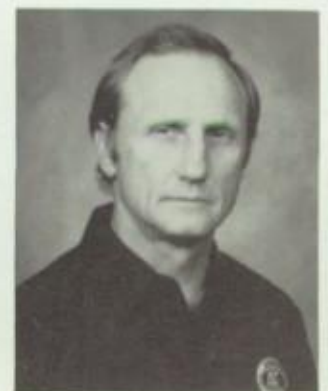

Industrial arts doesn't stop at mechanics, however. It also includes drafting, woodshop.

Many students having completed a course have gone on to find employment in their field of study.

Students leave these courses with positive attitudes and a sense of pride in their achievements. What more can you ask for? Not Pictured — D. Eubanks, M. Newman, and L. Overbay.

The World Of Fitness

By Kim White

Living in sunny California as we do, we tend to spend a great deal of time outdoors. Our outdoor life requires much physical activity. We need skills to survive out there, whether it is just a football game down the street, a volleyball game at the beach, or a jog around the block.

The skills and techniques learned can be carried with us throughout our entire lives. Life-long skills include fitness, teamwork, discipline, and most importantly, the ability to set and reach goals. Individual sports such as tennis, swimming, and running give us the opportunity to reach personal goals. However, sports such as football, softball, basketball, and soccer teach us to work toward a collective or team goal.

The P.E. department introduces us to these life-long skills through a variety of six-week units, stressing both individual and team sports. Students are coached in the rules, strategies, and skills of sports. They are also taught the discipline that athletics require. Whether it is first learning a skill or refining it, deep concentration is a must. The art of discipline learned in physical education can be carried over into other areas and aspects of life.

In a certain unit you might notice you excel. This could stimulate you to either become more interested in the sport and/or to participate on the extra-curricular level. However, if you do not pursue a sport further you at least have a basic knowledge of each of the units presented. Either way, you will be a better informed and more appreciative spectator.

Unlocking Foreign Doors

Are you looking for that Latin touch? That European flair? Chances are you aren't. However, if a working knowledge of Spanish or French is what you're after, the foreign language department is there to give you that and much more.

Several levels of Spanish were offered this year, including a new conversational course. Mrs. McClain and Mr. Muniozguren taught beginning classes along with advanced studies. Mrs. Douglas and Miss Newton taught the conversation class. The program was designed to be taken before the first year college prep course, as a refresher or as an initial exposure to the language.

If you are more adventurous, you might have chosen French as a second language. Ms. Romaine taught French throughout the day, along with one period of Spanish. With Ms. Romaine being trilingual, students often were amazed by her effortless ability to transfer from one language to another.

Learning didn't take place only in the classroom. Activities such as the Spanish IV play, Cinco de Mayo, and the French cabaret took the languages outside and into the student's everyday lives.

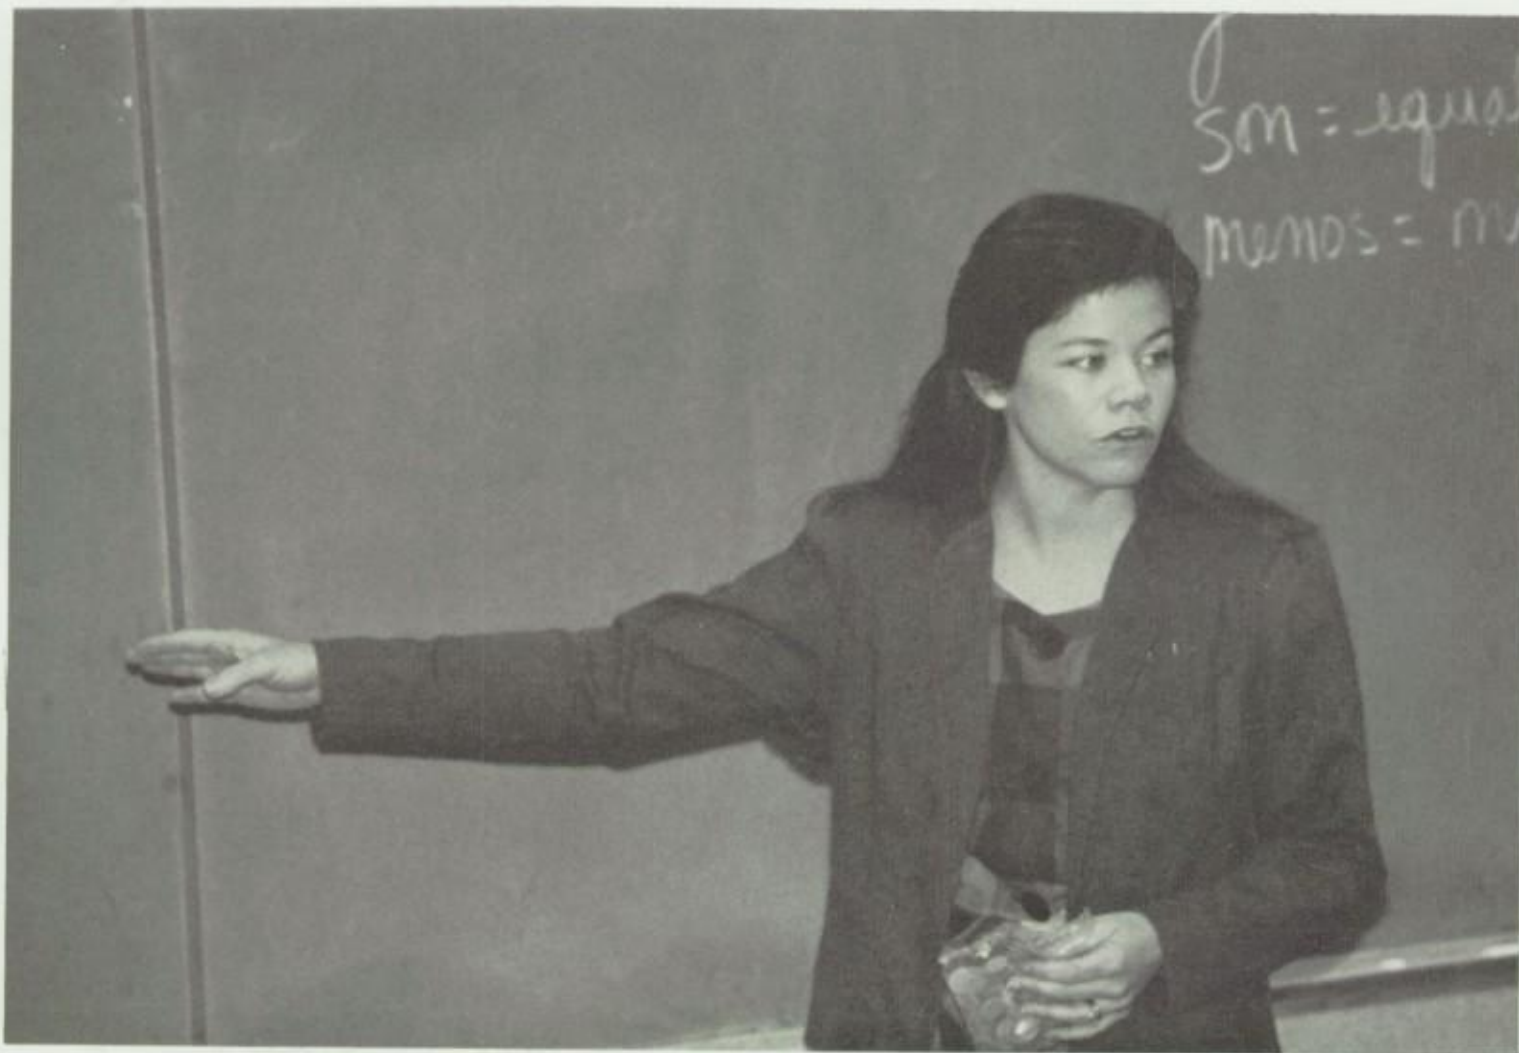

The intent of education is to broaden a student's view of the world around them. Foreign language not only broadens your world, it lets you understand it.

Reading, Writing, And More Writing

Julius Caesar, Antigone, Ethan Frome, Huckleberry Finn, Great Expectations.

These were literary works students were exposed to by the English department. Authors could have ranged from Homer to Robert Frost in a single course. The teachers had a variety of choices to be made regarding curriculum and presentation as they attempted to expand the ideas and creative processes of their students. This was accomplished through essays, oral presentations, journal entries, depth projects, poetry writing, and interpretation of literature. Note-taking skills were also emphasized and many teachers used the cross-disciplinary writing program. This approach, pioneered by Mr. DeKock and Mr. Yount, is based on initial responses (IR's) and reflective responses (RR's). Mr. Coulsby and Mr. Westdal originated a sophomore humanities class which was a combination of honors English and history.

Many teachers encouraged students to use their English talents out of the classroom. Ms. Schuster advised both journalism and publications, which produces the yearbook. Mr. Hanson advised Allusions, the literary magazine published by students. Also, Mr. Waasted taught a creative writing course that submitted much of its material to Allusions. Other teachers got involved on the playing field. Mr. Cooper coached baseball, Mr. Waasted coached football, and Mr. Reck was the voice of the boy's varsity basketball and football teams.

In a world where illiteracy is a major problem facing society, our English department is lowering those statistics and raising the hopes of those wishing for a completely literate nation.

A New Addition

By Kim White

The math department had a new face this year. Who was it? It was Mr. Ian Read from Sussex, England. Mr. Read came to America to teach several periods of Pre-Calculus and Basic Algebra. In exchange, Ms. Peairs went to England to teach Mr. Read's students. Mr. Read followed the trend in the department to get involved by becoming an assistant coach for the girl's soccer team. After their duties in the classroom were fulfilled, many of the other math teachers volunteered their time to coach basketball, football, baseball, cross country, and track. The program seemed to be promoting a well rounded education with the scales balanced between in-class activities and those outside the classroom.

On the academic side of the department, several levels of study were offered. They included Basic Math, Algebra I and II, Geometry, Pre-Calculus, and Calculus. Each teacher had his own methods of presenting material. But as El Cap's score on the C.A.P.S. test showed, the different approaches fulfilled their goal of teaching the subject matter.

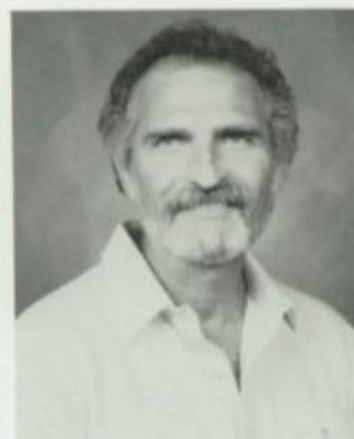

Due to the dedication of the staff, El Cap's image on campus and off has reached new heights in the East County and across the globe.

Science Labs Remodeled

The science labs had become antiquated, unsafe, and unable to meet the needs of an expanding department.

Department Chair Jim Peabody was instrumental in having the labs remodeled. The old lab tables in room 928 underwent construction to make them safer and more functional. They also increased the space available to accommodate more students.

The lab construction made it possible to conduct more complete experiments in a safer environment for greater numbers of students.

With greater numbers of students taking Biology 3CS and 4CS and other science classes, the department also added a new instructor, Mr. Loozen. He taught four classes of earth science and one period of chemistry.

Ground Work For Success

The social science department encompassed the broad array of geography, American History, career and family studies, psychology and political science.

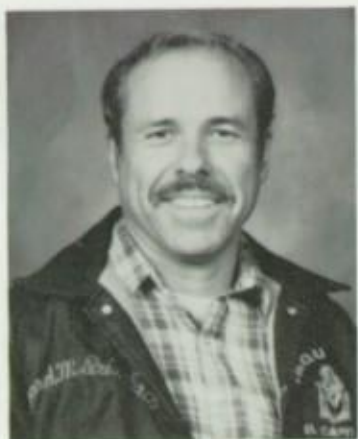

Many different techniques were utilized to convey the message of each course. In geography, a freshman requirement, a report on a specific country or a European vacation was the key to understanding the complexities of the world around us. Family budgeting and collages of future goals were a few activities that comprised career and family studies.

To meet the American History requirements, students could opt to take American History or American Studies, a two hour class combining English and American History. Through role playing and simulations, students gained an understanding of not only the history that took place but of emotions and attitudes at that time.

Civics combined Political Science and psychology and focused on the issues facing America both yesterday and today.

In all classes it was essential to have strong note taking and critical thinking skills. Trials, debates, and experiments reinforced lecture materials.

The Social Science department laid the ground work for well organized, well developed, and successful futures.

America's Number One Industry

By Kim White

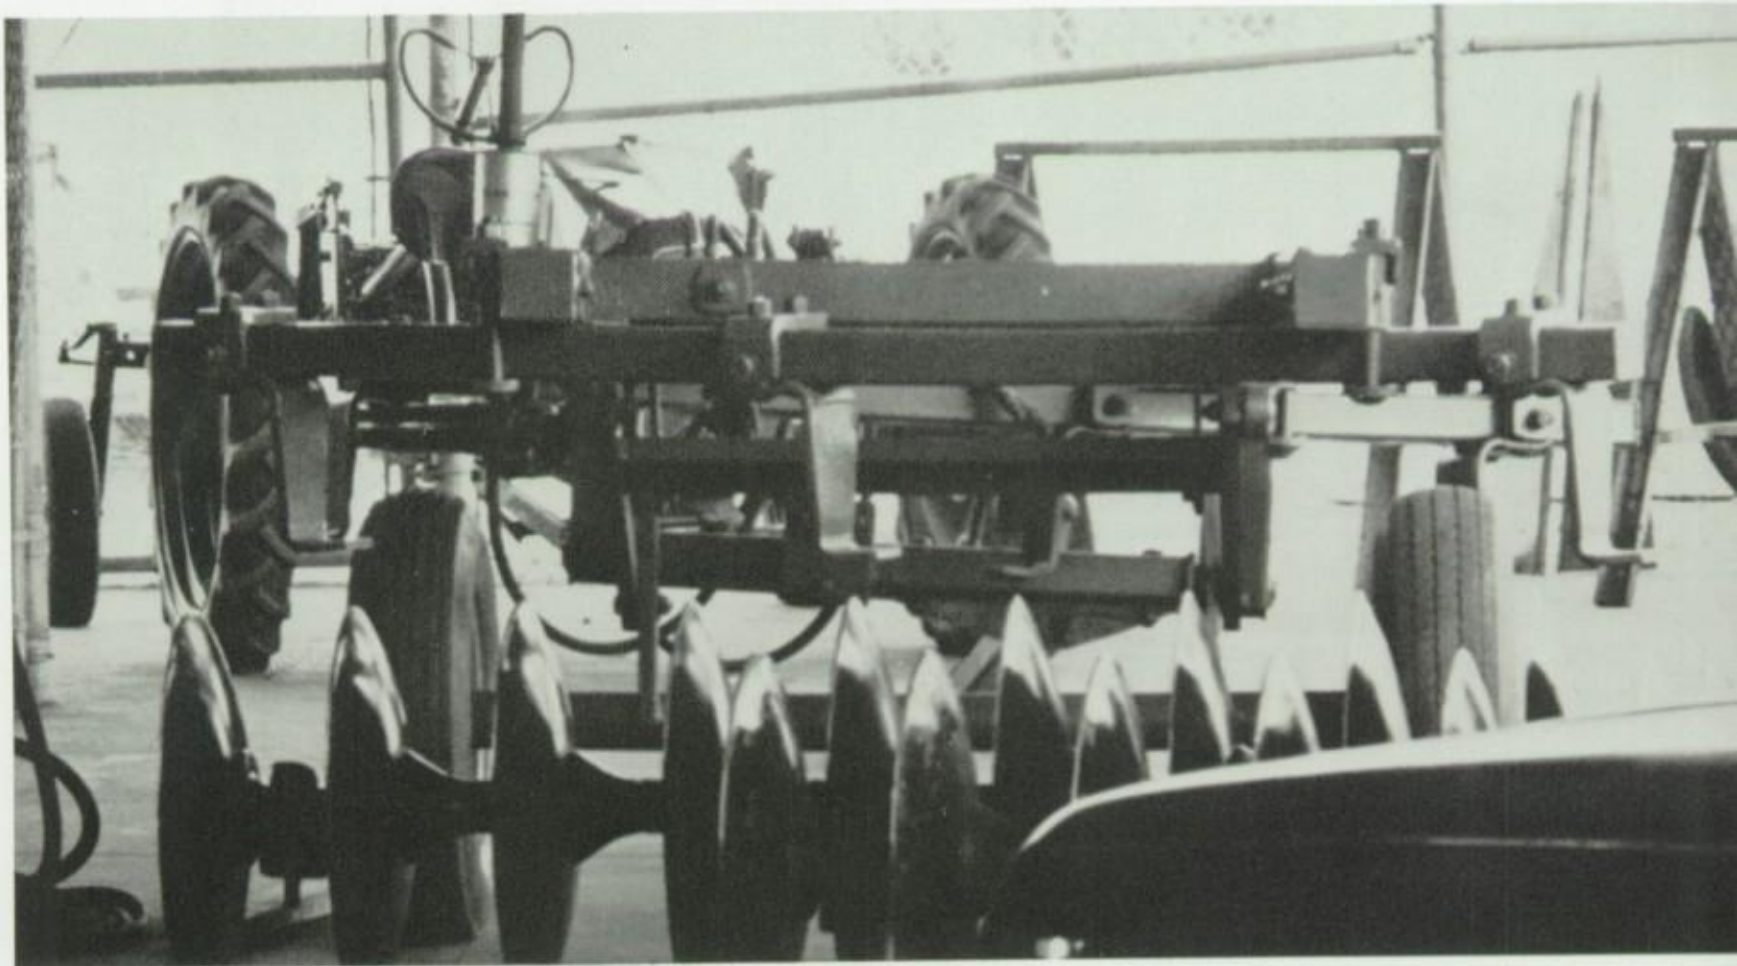

Though the word agriculture sparks images of crops growing, it encompasses much more. In our agriculture department, students are instructed in rigorous courses of leadership, parliamentary procedure, public speaking, record keeping, and of course agriculture. Over one hundred students enrolled in these classes to get a glimpse of the industry that is at the heart of America. Many became even more involved by joining the Future Farmers of America.

The Floral Design class opened and operated the Hitch-N-Post and gave the students an opportunity to display and sell their floral work. The Christmas and Valentine's sales were extremely successful.

Agriculture is America's number one industry and El Capitan is helping it to remain at the top of the competition.

The Future Farmers of America are a strong and visible force in America, in California, and at El Capitan.

Knowledge of and skill with heavy farm equipment is necessary for a complete agricultural education.

Creativity Exhibited In Electives

Creativity was expressed in many mediums in such classes as consumer science, drama, band, photo, crafts, and art. Students were able to express themselves in sewing, cooking, performing, and creating. Many students distinguished themselves such as Frances Carrillo and Tom Skibinski who had their art work exhibited at the San Diego Museum of Art. Others performed at ECPAC, the Veteran's Hospital, and in the Little Theater. Consumer science work was displayed throughout the year in the case outside the 1100 building. The specialty foods class prepared specialty luncheons monthly.

Under the direction and guidance of supportive faculty, many students achieved and had their efforts recognized.

Intense Organization Is The Key

By Ray Guassac & Kim White

As strange as it may seem, the administration was planning next year as we began school in September. This is because intense organization must take place for a school to run smoothly. Areas which could be rough spots are record keeping, registration and, bookkeeping. With so many students to keep track of, you wonder how they do it. The administrators utilize the district computer and keep meticulous records themselves.

Administrators must also deal with the problems of the present. These include disciplinary actions, scheduling changes, and funding challenges. Mr. Finch, Mr. Avant, and Mr. Wong deal with funding, discipline, and coordinating all school activities while the counselors Mr. Brown, Mrs. Nowak, and Mrs. Piccini deal with student scheduling. Each counselor insures that students are preparing effectively through high school courses for their future.

Mrs. Nowak is new to El Capitan this year. A graduate from Grossmont High School she is no stranger to East County or the Grossmont High School District. She has been greeted kindly due to her effective and compassionate handling of seemingly unsolvable problems.

Just socializing, Mr. Finch and Monique Fain discuss future cheer activities.

Who Do You See When?

Who do students see when they wish to make an appointment with their counselor? Or want to return a textbook? Who do teachers see for duplicating? Taking phone messages? Typing newsletters?

The office staff was there to answer these questions and to solve many problems relating to the efficiency of the school network. They were also the ones who greeted parents and visitors in the front office, handled the mail, recorded the grades, and tracked the attendance of everyone on campus.

These people keep the school organized and moving smoothly. They were not often seen in the classroom, but because of their efforts, the job of the teachers was made easier.

Besides everyday lunch services, the cafeteria staff helped to prepare meals for Cinco De Mayo, Student Appreciation Day, and 50¢ lunch specials. The lunch specials were offered once a month and included an entree, side dish, milk, fruit, and dessert.

The helpful solutions to these seemingly catastrophic occurrences only emphasized the importance and necessity for the efficiency of the custodial and grounds staff.

Leaving the custodial office, Dan begins to fulfill his daily duties.

Take A Byte Into The Working World

With large business and computer departments on campus, several students had the opportunity to prepare for their futures with useful skills. JUNIORS

The How And Why Of '87

This year definitely promised to be an interesting one under the leadership of Wally and Stan," said Cindy Noriega of Vice president Stan Baccinet and President Wally Pimentel. Their campaign speeches last year were zany but this attitude helped to bring support and participation into the junior class.

The class officers held meetings this year under the advisorship of Mr. Till. Their meetings were attended by many juniors unlike the lack of attendance in their past two years. The meetings were held to discuss fundraisers and plans for the next year's senior activities.

The candy sales and car washes all went well. Our goal is to earn enough money to have a free prom like this year's senior class," stated treasurer Cindy Noriega, "I hope we will be successful."

Enjoying their participation in the pep assembly, President Wally Pimentel and Vice President Stan Baccinett support the class of '87.

Who says dreams don't come true? Junior Michele Sutphin attained her childhood dream of becoming a baton twirler in her freshman year.

Dreams don't just happen because they are deserved, but rather they are made to happen. Michele couples hard work with her desire by practicing 12 to 15 hours per week in addition to her two hour daily band rehearsals.

During the football season Michele performed weekly. These performances were highlighted by her use of lighted batons. The flames flickered as Michele paced through her routine lighting the darkness with her deft movements.

Michele maintains a 3.6 grade point average and plans to attend San Diego State. Her long term goal is to become a veterinarian — the interim goal to twirl for S.D.S.U.

SOPHOMORES

The How And Why Of '88

The sophomores ended this year with approximately $2000 in their treasury. Most of the money will be spent during their senior year on such things as the prom, grad night and a class gift for the school. "We're always having fun while we do the job," said Cathy Perry, sophomore class president. The class of '88 held many fundraisers including a car wash, teeshirt sale, carnation sale, wrapping paper sale and a luau dance. "We don't have as much participation as we would like, but we still get the job done," stated Perry. "The luau dance brought in all kinds of money, it is the big fundraisers like that which are really worthwhile," said Vice President Chad Chapman.

"There are many people like Chrissy Vargas, Karen Keehner, Melany Beyer and Denise Nash who aren't officers, but they do help out often," said Perry.

"I think that we have accomplished a great deal this year and we're looking forward to having a very exciting prom," stated Chapman. "In my next two years of being at El Cap I'm looking ahead to helping my class by donating more time and energy, and hopefully others will do the same."

As he shows his spirit on Toga Day, Chad Chapman gets psyched up to compete in the class competition for the sophomores.

"Who's That Sophomore?"

Have you noticed a rather well-dressed young man walking confidently around campus? Well, he didn't just step out of G.Q. although he may look it. He's sophomore Steve Alvarado.

Steve is not just all good looks though, he is currently enrolled in honors classes. He plans to continue this college bound curriculum with the enrollment in American Studies and second year French. Steve also fully comprehends the Spanish language.

Music is also one of Steve's interests. Steve has played the violin for over five years but he also enjoys more modern instruments such as the drums and the synthesizer.

Steve Alvarado is definitely a person with many strengths and interests. Whether it be fashion, music, or a lifetime of travel, his intelligence and motivation will take him far.

Tammy Kniffing

Don Gabriella

According to the records, Tammy Kniffing is proving to be one of the most successful athletes in El Cap history.

In her freshman year, Tammy was the runner-up in the Crossmont League Cross Country finals. She received both All-League and All-CIF selections and, in turn, was the MVP of the girls' team. In her sophomore year, she set a personal record of 11:52 in the two mile race. She finished 4th at the Southbay Invitational and 2nd at the prestigious Mt. San Antonio College Invitational, a race including California's finest runners.

Tammy's running career began long before high school. She started when she was nine years old with a local club. Since that time she's been running consistently with either Coach Brooks, a fellow teammate, or by herself. She runs eight miles per day, year-round, in order to maintain her endurance.

Tammy does not run simply because it's something she's good at; she truly loves to run. "Running gives me a stronger attitude and makes me feel better about myself," says Tammy.

Who's that Sophomore? Who stands out among the Class of '88? One name that has been heard is Greg Branson. A relatively tall blonde, he is noticed by his peers as being both attractive and intelligent. He is enrolled in college preparatory classes and receives above average grades.

Outside of schoolwork, which takes up much of Greg's time, he is actively involved in athletics both in school and out. During the winter season, Greg played defense on the varsity soccer team. Greg also played tennis during the spring season. The promising varsity prospect who takes additional lessons after school, was ranked highly on the tennis team after only one year on j.v.

More activities that Greg enjoys, are being an active member of the lake club at school, and just going to the mountains to enjoy the snow and the mountain air.

Greg doesn't have definite plans for the future at this time, but with his various interests there are many prospects. Whether Greg decides to go into athletics, or something he hasn't yet discovered, he has the talent to take him far.

The How And Why Of '89

The class of 1989 did well in the spirit contests and held a successful dance the Friday before spring break. During the dance, the freshmen, along with A.S.B. hosted the air band competition and the announcement of the new 1986-87 cheerleaders. These added attractions, along with the music provided by Sunshine Mobile Music only brought more students to this freshmen class fundraiser.

The class also held its own in the area of academics. In 1985 a new bill was passed that requires freshmen to have twenty more credits than the previous classes. El Capitan's new ninth graders met the first year test of this requirement and will go on to set new state standards.

"You can expect to hear a lot about the class of 1989," said secretary Katie Shultz. With its great start, the freshmen are sure to set more records as sophomores.

Boarding the bus is an activity of all grade levels but it is most common to freshmen.

The Sky's The Limit In '89

By Kim White

Freshmen are traditionally thrown into a corner, acknowledged only when it is absolutely necessary. Not this year. The class of '89 demanded attention in all areas, especially athletics.

The freshmen football team, working with the Pop Warner organization, rallied to a record of four wins and five losses. "Workouts were a lot harder than I'd thought they'd be but the playing experience will definitely help next year," said receiver and defensive end Jeremy Ellis. Giving time on the field to inexperienced players before they entered the prep leagues was the intention of coaches Joe Till, Joe Cota, and Rich Barney.

Coach Sullivan and Coach Uden had a similar goal in mind for the freshmen basketball team. Showing great promise for El Cap's future on the court, the boys finished with a record of twelve wins and nine losses, making it to the freshmen playoffs. They won their first post-season contest but fell short in the second. The team was led by players Mike and Erin Murray. Each averaged over eighteen points per game.

As you can see, this freshmen class has the potential to be a real force in the Grossmont League. With the success they've achieved in the 85-86 school year, the sky's the limit for 88-89.

Drawing on his wisdom from the side-lines, Coach Till shouts to the players to watch the pass rush.

To give the team the recognition it deserved, Coach Rockhold introduced them during the Homecoming assembly.

In the final game of the season at Monte Vista, the freshmen Vaqueros score a game clinching touchdown.

Who's That Freshman?

By Kim White

Can you tell these twins apart? Don't worry, very few people can. Even their closest friends make mistakes.

Mike and Erin Murray are used to being confused for each other. However, these boys are beginning to make their marks on El Capitan. Both are excellent students and quite imposing walking down the halls despite their freshmen status.

Originally from Oregon, it is joked that their size comes from the backwoods life. Once in Southern California their interest in sports soared. Both Mike and Erin were members of the J.V. Football team. Mike played tight-end and Erin was a defensive linebacker. At least in their jerseys you could tell them apart. Mike had a significant yardage statistic and Erin was very successful at rushing the opposing quarterback.

Their athletic involvements did not stop with football. Both played basketball and had promising seasons on the court. Nevertheless, their true love is football.

To participate in athletics, Mike and Erin know they must maintain the grades to do so. These boys not only maintain the grades needed to play, they surpass them. Both have been commended for their academic performances.

It's hard to tell when and where these two brothers differ. Friends such as Rob White state the one difference to be seen is that Erin is slightly more easy going, where Mike sometimes had the tendency to be serious. Even the twins themselves could not find an area where they greatly differed. The boys said they wouldn't have it any other way.

People often wonder what it would be like to meet someone who is exactly like themselves; Mike and Erin Murray don't need to wonder. They know.

Alfred E. Newman might worry, but Brian Harmon says, "What, me worry? No need, I've got some answer keys."

Who's That Freshman?

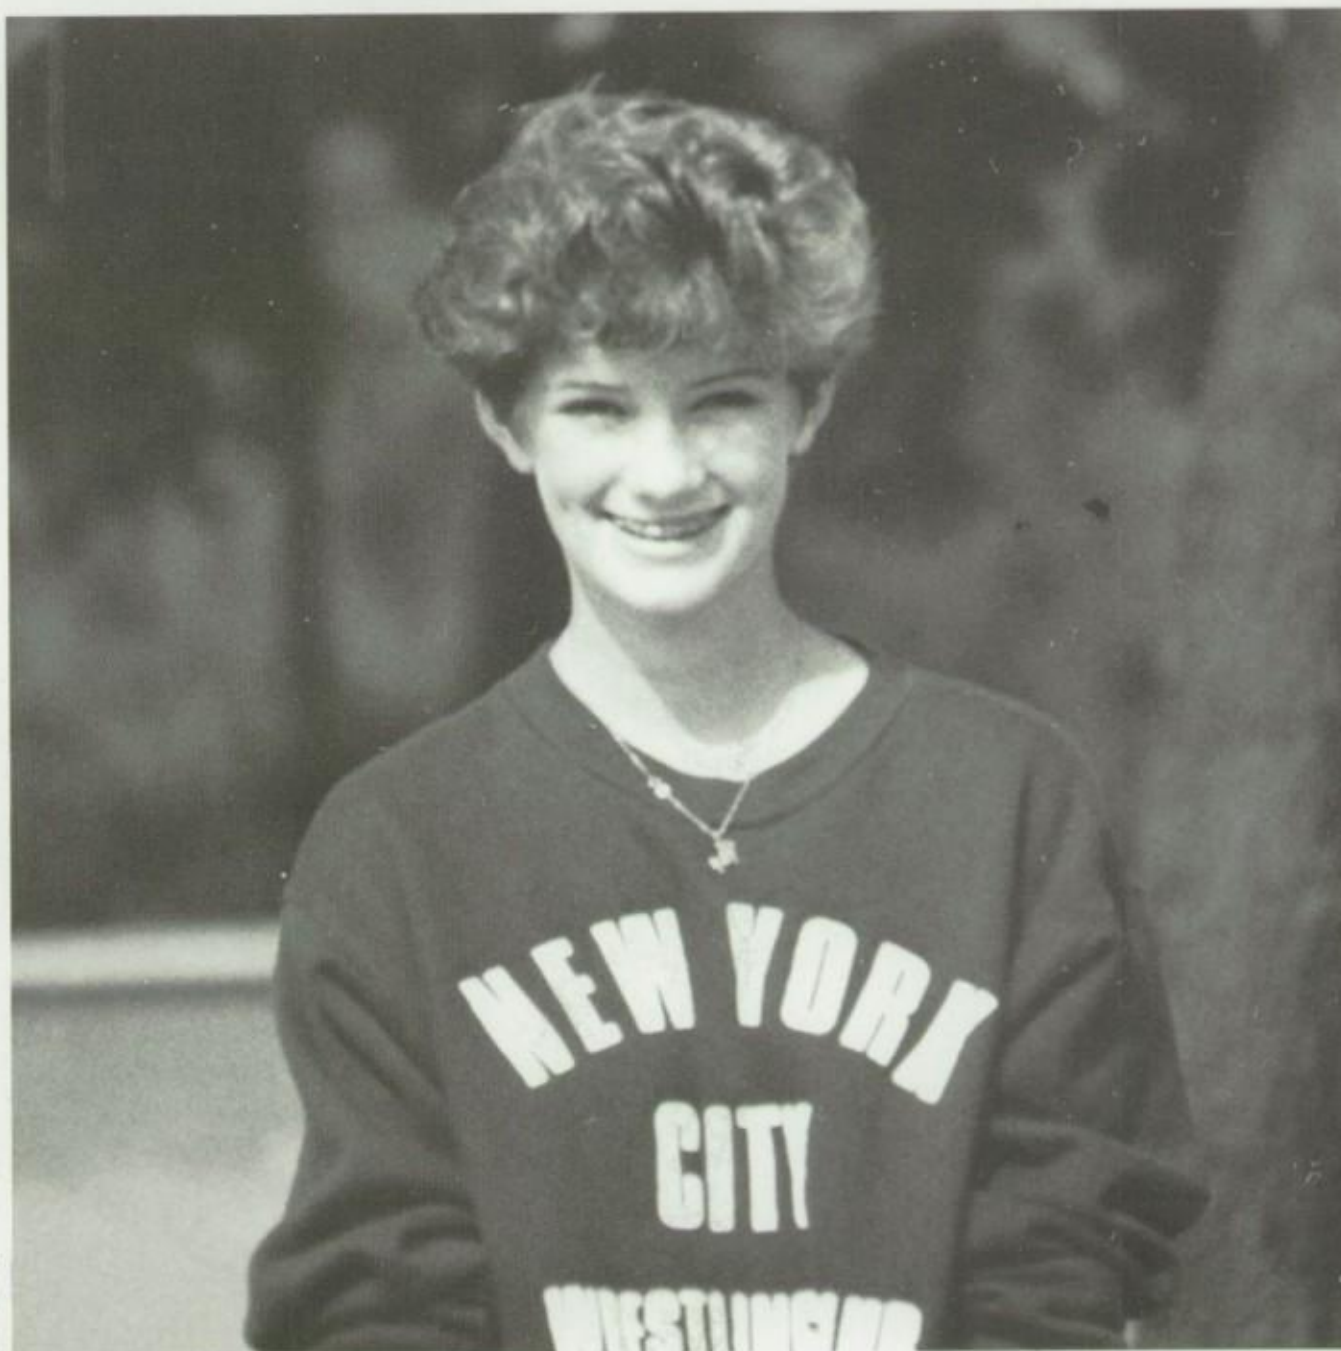

By Kim White

A star in our midst? You better believe it. That is, if Stacey Van Gessel has anything to do with it. This petite freshman has been taking singing, dancing, and acting lessons for as long as she can remember.

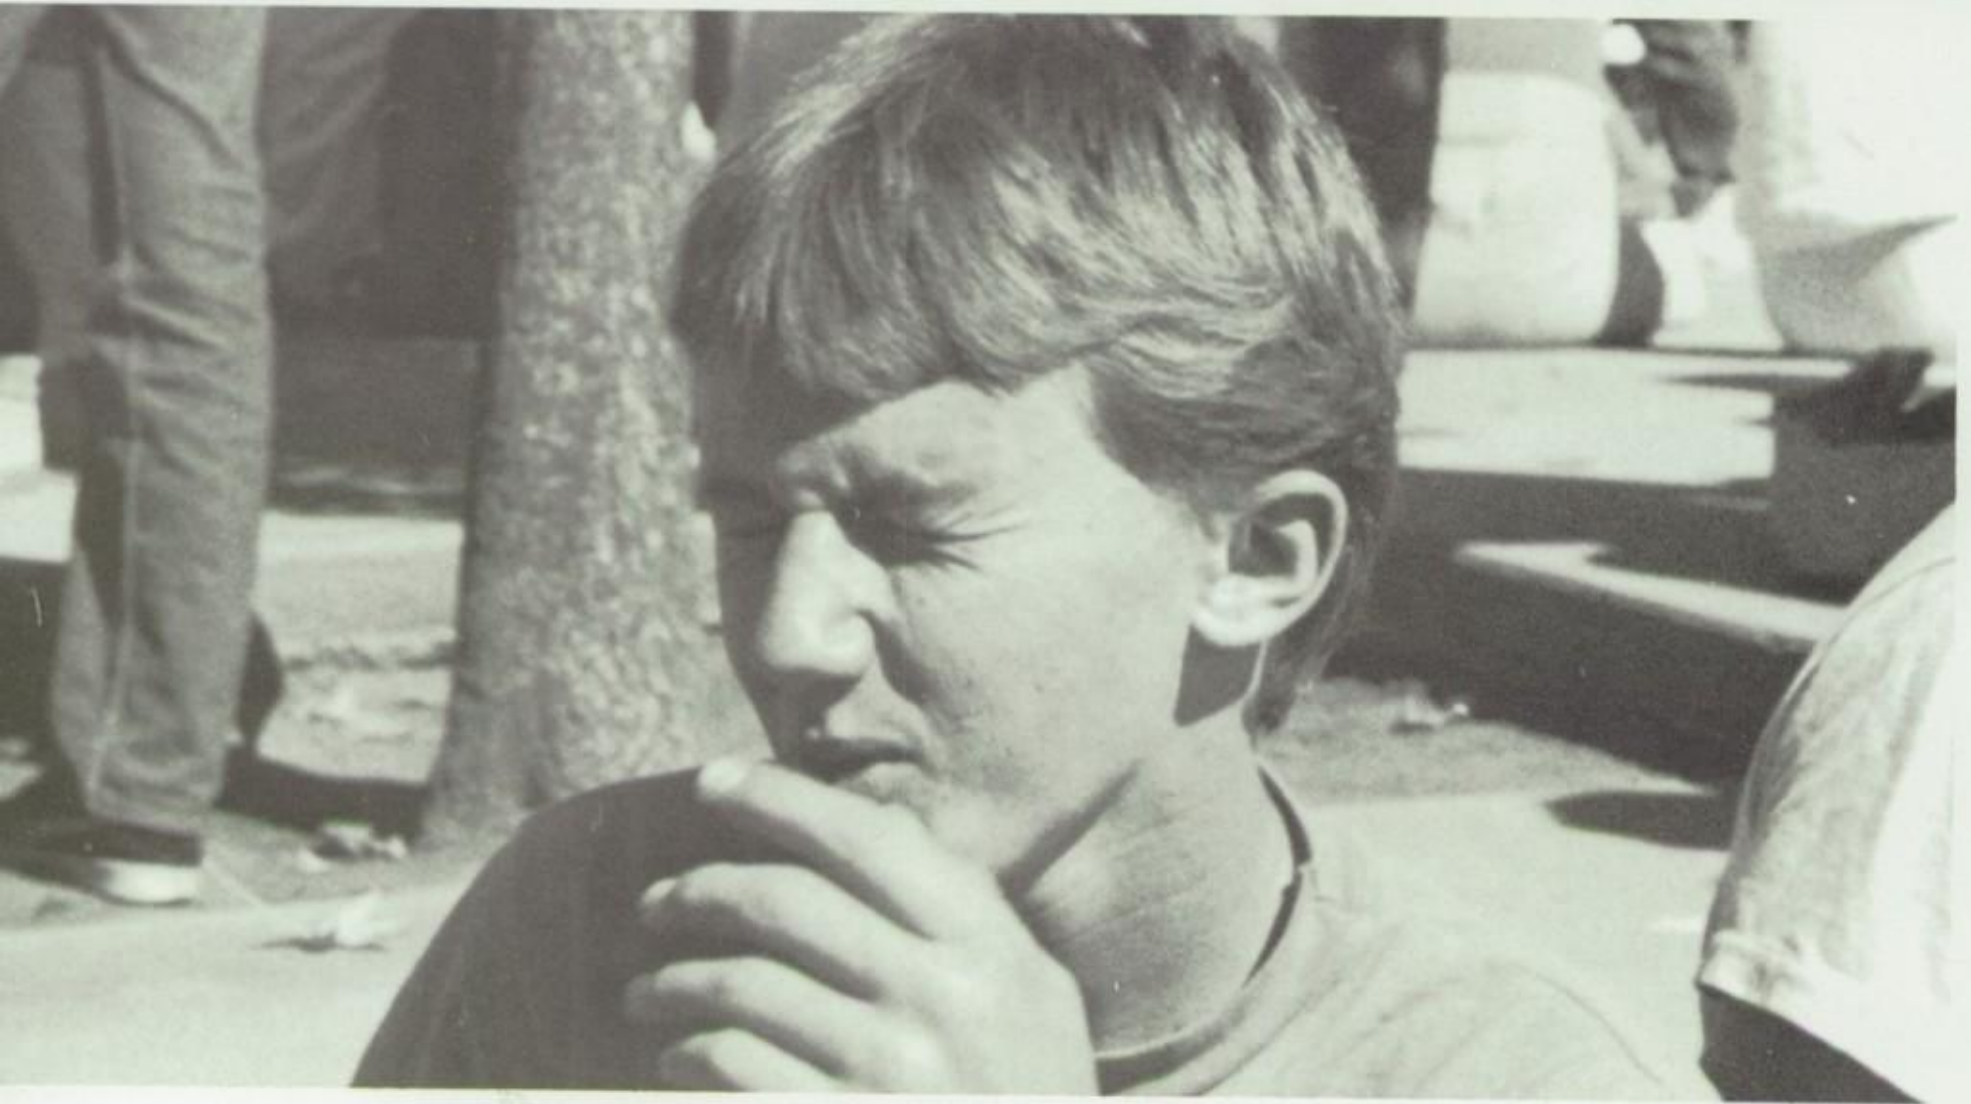

Stacey began performing in talent showcases in gradeschool. She has even played Las Vegas. Due to her success in the showcases, Stacey began auditioning for local plays. Soon she wasn't just auditioning, she was being cast. She had a role in the '84 El Cajon Performing Arts version of "Bah Humbug," and she appeared on Sun-Up San Diego with the entire cast of the production. Earlier this year she appeared in "Bye Bye Birdie."

Stacey is also an avid sports fan. She has played on several different soccer teams in the last seven years. It seems as if her talents never end. Stacey has participated in debate and speech contests. The contests include the local Optimist and Rotary events.

Throughout all this activity, Stacey has maintained her academic status. She has been commended for the discipline and enthusiasm she has displayed in her studies.

A star? No one really knows for sure. However, if you're a betting person, the odds are good, Stacey VanGessel is going for stardom.

As the bell rings, Devon Davis grimaces because he has to leave his friends and return to class.

The Vaqueros are surging to a victory over Santana as Lura Rockhold watches Steve Nowlan complete a pass to put the ball in scoring position.

SPORTS

Tackling "2A" Championship

The 1985 football season was a history making one for the Vaqueros. As champions of the newly formed 2A Grossmont league, El Cap established itself as a team to be recognized. With victories over 3A teams, Santana and Mt. Miguel, El Cap took this momentum to garner league honors. Led on offense by All-League selections Chris Dickerson and Glen Reese (tackles) and running game was in high gear. With 2nd team All-League Andy Johns and Carlos Gutierrez (sophomore receivers) and Steve Nowlan (QB), the passing game complemented the ground game.

But at El Capitan, defense is the name of the game. Led by All-League/All-CIF tackle Troy Pinkerton, the Vaquero defense shut out two opponents. All-League linebackers, Mike Hurst, Tim Durst, and Jim Donahoo and All-League DB's, Alan Lynch and Jim Hunnell helped teammate Jeff Sumner shut down Valhalla in the league title game.

Losing to San Marcos in the 1st round of 2A, CIF playoffs was a heartbreaking experience, but it may serve as the stepping stone toward a bright future at the 2A level.

The Vaquero sideline eager to begin play at the CIF playoff game against San Marcos, watches the opening kickoff.

A second team quarterback, Steve Nowlan, scrambles away from three Grossmont defensive players.

Coach Rockhold anxiously awaits the outcome to the Valhalla game; El Capitan trailed 13-9.

Santana's ill-fated attempt at a "reverse" is stopped for no gain by #33, Jeff Hoss.

Jeff Hoss, Jeff Sumner, Taza Gaoa, and Jim Donahoo swarm a Santana ball carrier.

During the opening kickoff, the Vaqueros converge on the Grossmont kick returner, stopping him on the 18 yard line.

Dave Barrett, along with the Vaquero defensive squad, celebrates after the offense scores touchdown.

Defensive Back, Troy Lynch, tackles a Grossmont receiver for no gain.

Leading Mount Miguel at the half, the Vaqueros leave El Cap Stadium to meet with coaches.

Receiving inspiration from Coach Waasted, the Vaquero linebackers and defensive line are ready to begin second half.

Coach Vickery, quarterback and receiver instructor, listens to Wally Pimentel's suggestions about possible strategies.

Preparing himself for a tackle, Mike Hurst keeps an eye on the Granite Hills quarterback.

Tearing through the banner, the Vaqueros race onto the field for the second half against Santana.

J.V. Football On The Move

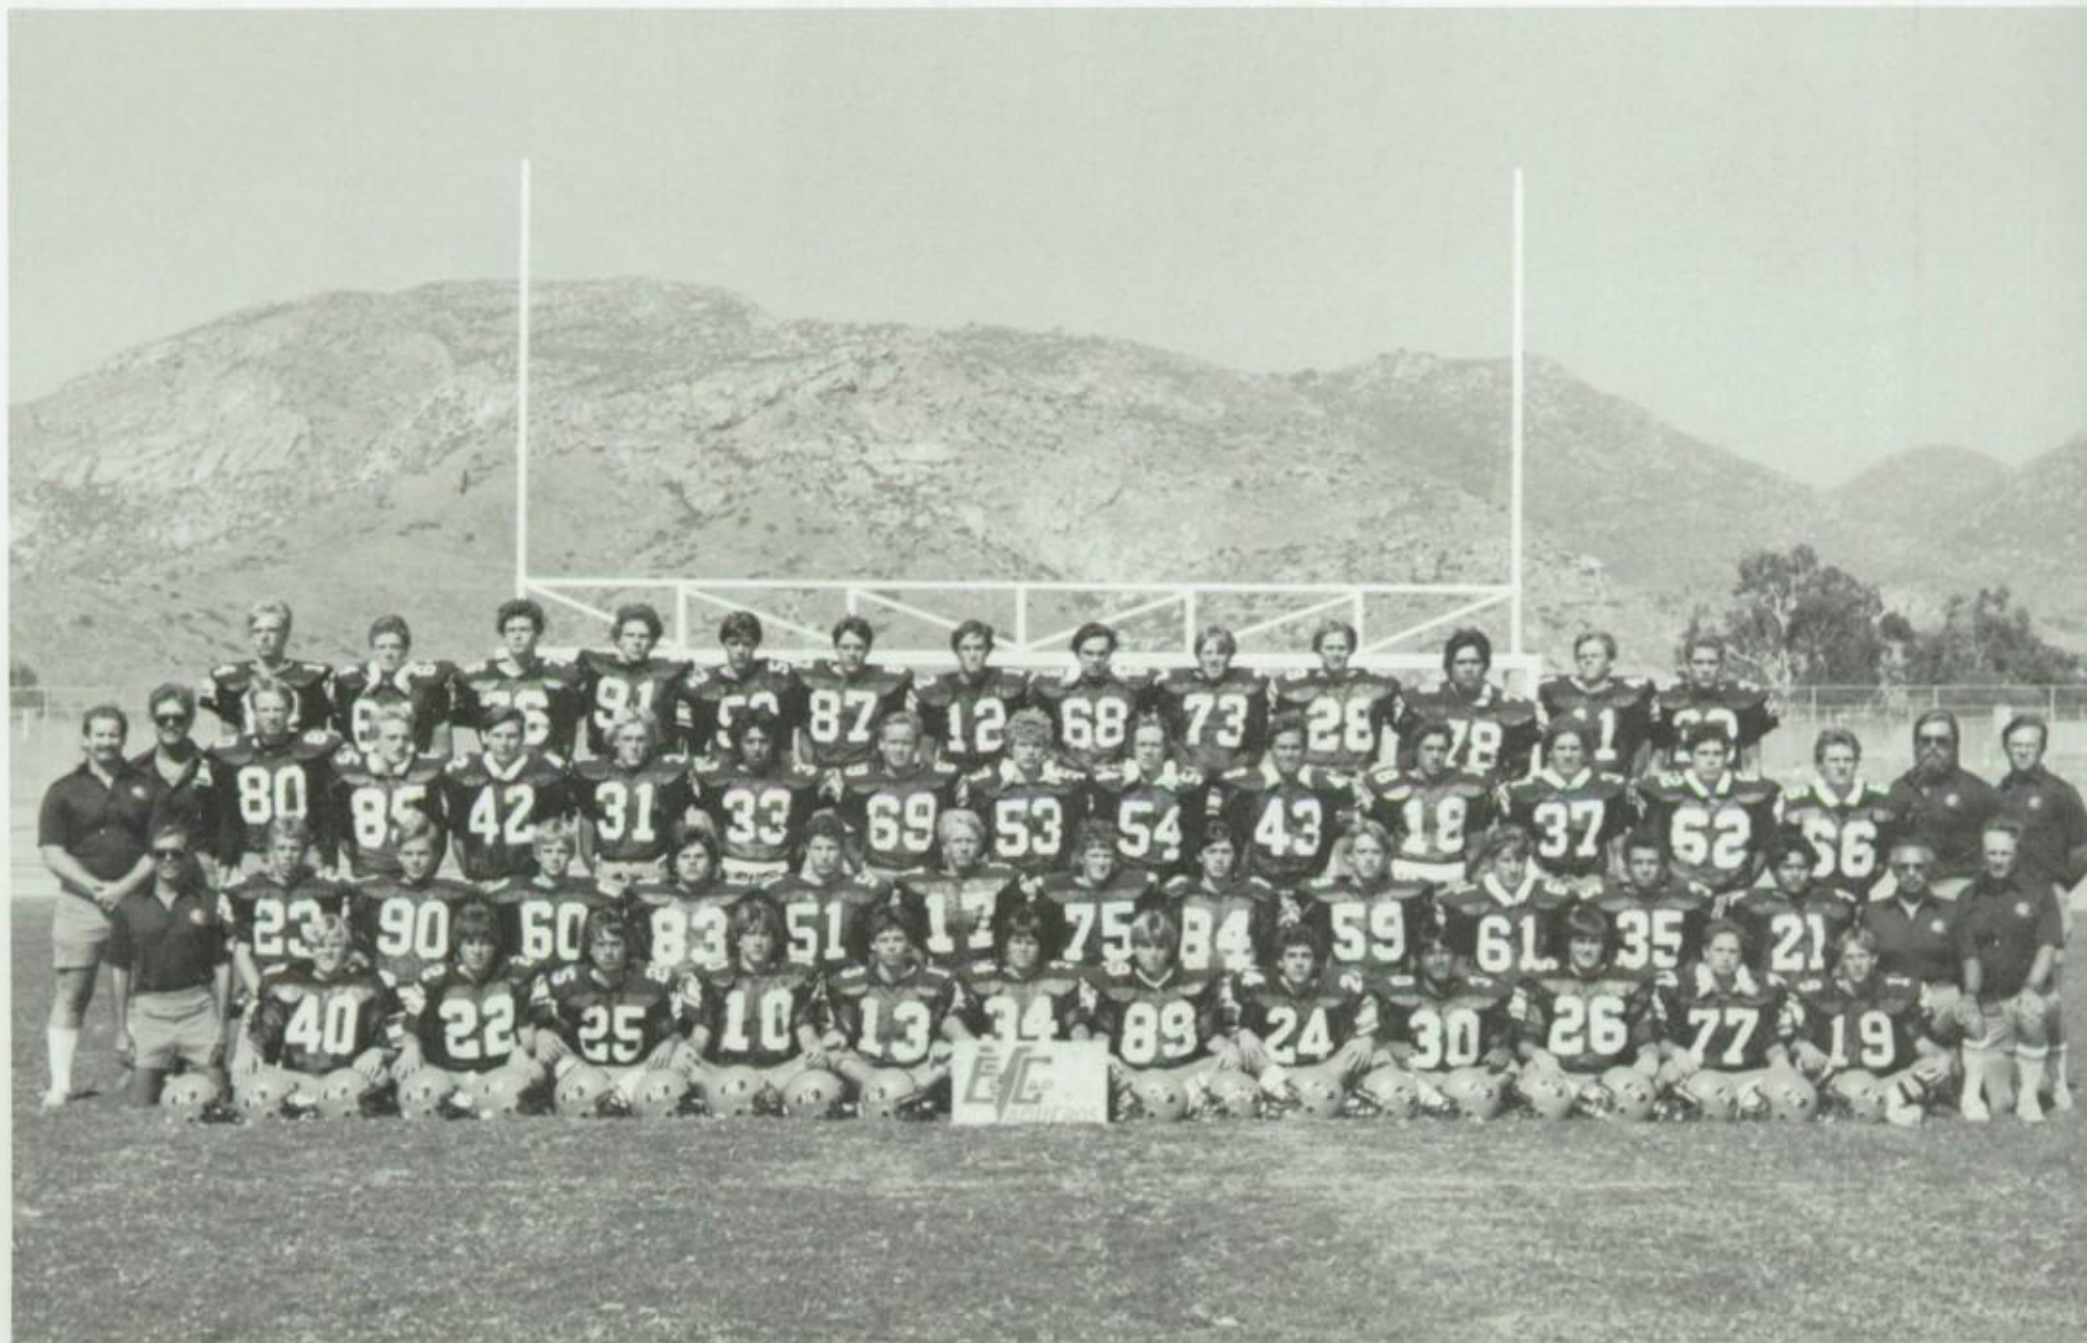

By Michelle Stanley

The purpose of the junior varsity team was to build strength and develop ambitious, positive attitudes in preparation for the varsity team. It was a learning period for the players and as Rob White stated, "We must learn to work together as a unit, then we can win." Players had to adapt to any situation that may arise. Most players were pleased with their 4-4-1 season which earned the team a third place in the Grossmont League 3-A division. The majority of the team agreed the last game of the season was the best with a 47-6 win over Valhalla.

Although all members of the team played an important role, there were two individuals of distinction. Captains Corey Butcher and John Lopez, leaders of the offensive and defensive teams led the Vaqueros with enthusiasm, courage, and excellence.

While explaining the next defensive play, Mr. O'Malley helps boost the players' confidence.

Guards Rob White and Roger Lentz discuss the last defensive play.

Concentration, coordination, and contact are vital elements of a successful field goal. Kicker Scott Dempsey mastered these skills and scored many during the season.

From a second effort by Chris Hernandez, the Vaqueros gain extra yardage.

The Vaqueros recognize that good sportsmanship is an important part of the game by shaking hands with the defeated Sultans.

There's No Ponies In This Polo

By Kristine Stanzick

"Water polo is a sport which should be given more recognition," stated Coach Hedberg. With a team filled with experienced players, they went far in their battles with leading teams such as Helix and Valhalla.

To open their season, El Cap went up against Helix. The grueling game that went tied throughout, came to an abrupt halt when in the last minute Helix scored the winning goal. This narrow loss elicited a positive attitude within El Capitan; they believed in their strengths and skills.

Involving great amounts of cardiovascular endurance and upper body strength, water polo practices were long and demanding. The team held together and were recognized for their excellence. Team captains were Miles Gleaton and Tory Surratt who received a first team All-league selection.

During a time-out, the players gather around Coach Hedberg to get his opinions and advice.

As he tries to free himself from a defender, Troy Surratt keeps his eyes on the ball's movement.

This year's j.v. waterpolo team really knew how to begin a season. With their first game against number one ranked Vahalla, things didn't look good. The team gathered themselves and made their first game their first win.

Although the season ended with a half and half record, the team kept the morale and confidence instilled by their first game. "I was really very proud of the players, they know how to play tough for the competition," said Coach Hedberg.

With team captains who were key players, they played organized games. Clint Cattell and Dave Myers named that as their goal.

These interested young athletes learned the skills and confidence to make a promising varsity team next year.

Mark Russell swims toward the opposition's goal, Mark Russell for the action.

Bottom row: Debbie Brooks, Laurie Dennis, Shelley Crockett, Coach Newton, Cathy Singer, Jeri Bullington, Yvonne Phillips, Gina Schiavoni.

Showing vast improvement, the varsity tennis team finished the second half of the season with a four and four record. Coach Newton commented that the improvement was attributed to their "desire to win."

The team was very young with most of the players being freshmen or sophomores. There were only three seniors and two juniors competing. This is a indication of how strong the team will be in years to come.

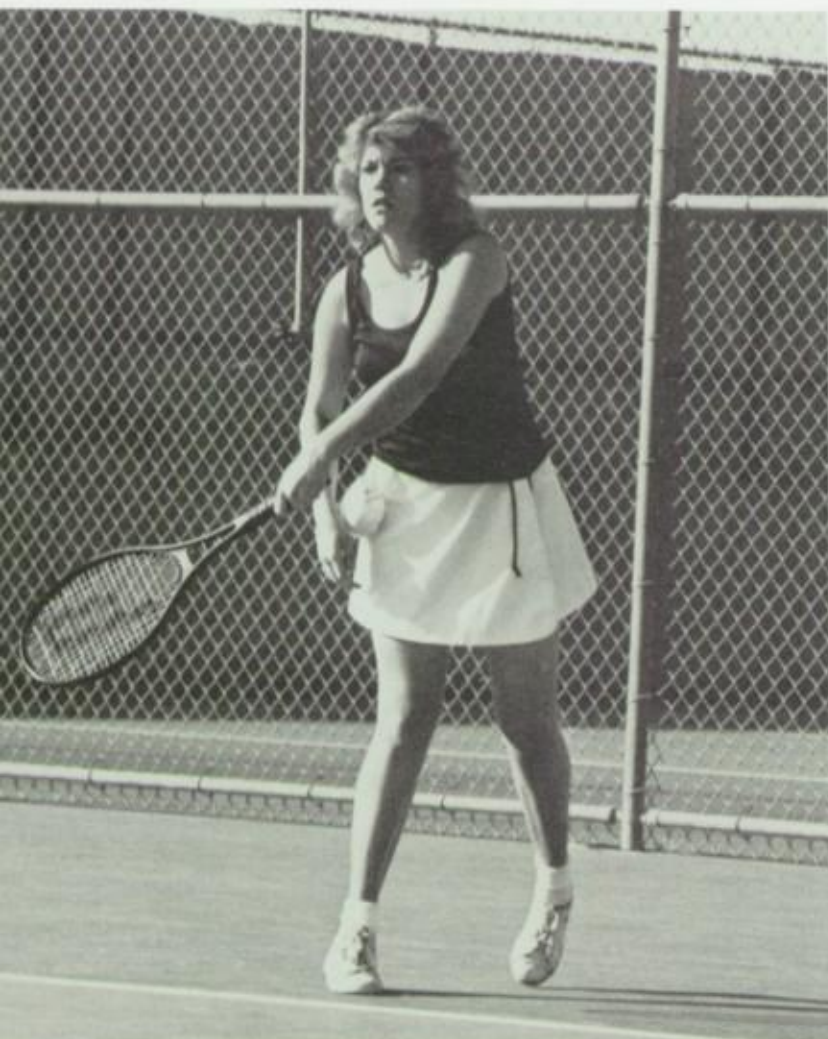

Standouts were: Most improved player: Cathy Singer, Most valuable player: Jeri Bullington, Coach's award or most inspirational: Thy Nguyen, Captain of the team: Yvonne Phillips.

The junior varsity team was one of the strongest El Cap has seen in some years. There were twenty-four players and only nine playing spots. This made for strong competition within the team itself. This junior varsity experience will help shape these girls into strong varsity players.

Standouts were: Most improved players: Terri Robinson and Joy Principe, Most Valuable players: Shannon Maxwell and Shana Haugum, Most inspirational: Rae Ann Hamilton.

Most valuable player, Jeri Bullington, returns a splicing forehand for the game point.

"Setting" Standards Above The Rest

The varsity volleyball players agreed that the pivotal match of the season was against Mt. Miguel. Until that point, they experienced some difficulties working as a unit. This key match resulted in a strong move toward new goals and more positive attitudes. It brought the girls together to play as a unit, thus the remaining games were played competitively and with finesse.

Coach Loozen said, "Each member was an asset and had many strengths but, the team was crippled by a lack of height." That one weakness was the crucial factor in the team not winning more games.

Consequently, this season is not remembered so much for wins or losses, but rather as one of individual and team accomplishments.

Setting Skills For Future Play

This year's j.v. volleyball team was led by Coach Seabloom, a first year coach that helped the team greatly with their skills.

With practice beginning the week before school began, there was much time for running and lifting weights. The team began large but as players filtered out, the team ended with twelve strong volleyball players.

The team learned each others strengths and weaknesses and built their positions on them. Learning basic bumping and hitting skills were helpful to begin with but as the season progressed, they worked on the finer aspects. Perfecting setting, diving, blocking, and spiking were the goals of this team.

"The year was fun and I learned a lot. I hope that next year we will have a more structured team because of this year's experience," said freshman player Becky Herzig. The basic feeling about the season was that it was a success because of the teamwork and learning involved. With the freshman skill of athletes such as Becky Herzig, Toni Sprecco, and Dinger Gerdes, the team will prosper next year.

J.V. Boys Cross The Distance

Runners Scott Johnson, Sean Salley, and Konstantine Kindreich give it their all at Lindo Lake.

In a meet against Mt. Miguel and Valhalla, El Cap races to the finish ahead of the pack.

The strain of the miles on his face, David Wester, but pushed himself toward the finish.

The j.v. boy's cross country team entered the season with wins in twenty-one consecutive meets. Unfortunately, the spell was broken in the first meet against Mount Miguel, but the defeat did not lower the team's confidence. With the consistency of Chris Blanco and the leadership of Scott Johnson, their first loss was their only loss.

They proved their skill as they won the Mt. San Antonio Frosh-Soph Invitational. Their perserverance continued throughout the season and showed in the Grossmont League Finals with Konstantine Kindreich placing second, Scott Johnson placing seventh, Sean Salley placing eighth, Chris Blanco placing eleventh, and Art Martin placing twelfth. They also proved their worth and their number one status by taking the Grossmont League Championship.

Small Team Wins Big Championship

Boy's Cross Country Captures 3A CIF Title

Don Gabriella and John Kemp racing to a 3rd and 4th place at the Monte Vista/Santana meet.

With only three returning lettermen out of a group of seven, the varsity boy's cross country team and others did not have great expectations for the year. The team at the most, realistically hoped to place in the top half of the Grossmont League, and perhaps qualify for the CIF meet. But as the season unfolded, the team began to see improvement continued with each practice. Perhaps they were better than they were thought to be.

Senior team capitan, Don Gabriella, running since his freshman year, lead his team through many victories and one defeat. Along the road came Grossmont League finals with El Capitan finishing first. The title "Grossmont League Champs" now belongs to them.

Next came the CIF meet on Novem-

League Finals

El Cap 54 (1st place)

Monte Vista 68 (2nd place)

Valhalla 78 (3rd place)

Granite Hills 103 (4th place)

ber 27th. The team had hopes of the CIF Championship. They knew it was in their reach and with a little more KICK they could embrace it fully.

That extra KICK gave Don Gabriella 2nd, John Kemp 10th, Dave Westerhout 13th, Mike Poffenbarger 16th, and Ceaser Aguilar 17th in the finals. This was the reality which only they could have shaped.

This small, but powerful team of seven gave us the honor of being San Diego's 3A Cross Country Champions.

To prepare for a C.I.F. victory, the boy's varsity league champions take a quick run around Lindo Lake.

Team Work Results In Co-League Championship

Coach Brooks and the girls cross country team take the scenic route around the hills of Lakeside.

Tammy Kniffing runs to a first place at Santee Lakes.

Danice Von Feldt finishes a fine race at Westhills.

Coach Brooks, in his second year of coaching girl's cross country found that this year the girls have learned to run together. Not only in form, but more importantly as a team. Togetherness is extremely important when a team of twelve has only two experienced runners. And so the girls have learned to help one another, always cheering for the team.

Throughout the season the team improved and received good times at their league meets. These times carried them into the Grossmont League finals in which they became Co-League Champs.

The top seven; Tammy Kniffing, Danice Von Feldt, Diana Bradley, Lisa Rivera, Anita Bradley, Kerrie Wilkins, and Jackie Rice continued on to CIF where they placed a close fourth in San Diego's 3A competition.

Although they did not place first, Coach Brooks is looking forward to the future for the girls will have the individual experience and the team work that has already been instilled.

Slamming Into C.I.F.

Throughout the decade, El Capitan basketball has been a contender for the Grossmont League championship year after year. The Vaqueros, with five returning lettermen from '84-'85's team, were picked by their peers to "run-away" with the league title.

Burroughs, first team All-Grossmont League and three year varsity letterman, was elected Most Valuable Player of the Year for the Grossmont League. But Steve "Uh-Oh" Burroughs was not the only shining star on the team. Aaron "Springs" Johnson who led the team in scoring, was also named to the first team. Steve "All-World" Nowlan, known for his scrappy defensive play, was the third Vaquero selected to the first team. Matt "Big Red" Schmidt, a six foot nine-inch center and devastating shot blocker, was appointed to the second team all-league. Guard Geoff "Rubik" Adams, defensive specialist, received an honorable mention for his superior play against CIF opponents Morse and Poway. But even with the dominating starting five, the Vaqueros succeeded with help off the bench. Greg Hauett, Eric Farley, Dave Krugh, Brooks Herald, Bobby Cook, Mike Chelsea, and Danny Curtis all played excellent in their "role player" duties.

The playoffs were easily attained by this talent-rich team. Although they dominated Grossmont League opponents, few teams would give them the credit they deserved. El Capitan proved their superiority by dominating last year's CIF runner up, Morse, and advancing to the semi-finals against two year CIF champion, Poway. Against Poway, El Capitan surprised the critics by leading the Titans through three and one-half quarters of the game. As Dave Krugh said, "Everyone thought the only good basketball was played in the city. We showed San Diego County we could play ball too!" And, yes, THEY COULD PLAY!

Defensive specialist, Geoff "Thumper" Adams, looks to pass the ball to an open teammate.

From the moment the ball is tipped, Matt Schmitt and the Vaqueros are in complete control.

Ready for the rebound, Aaron "Springs" Johnson prepares to score another game winning basket.

Grossmont League Player of the Year, Steve Burroughs, scores from the outside insuring a victory over Mount Miguel and the league championship.

Senior Pam Crawford uses her concentration to make a free throw during the game against Valhalla.

In a defensive position, Kelly Walch prepares to stop a Norseman from getting to El Cap's basket.

"Free throws are an easy point if you can concentrate on the ball rather than the crowd," comments Lisa Standing.

Experience Is The Key

During the Helix game, Coach Sullivan calls a time-out to discuss a new strategy.

After maneuvering her way into the key, Pam Crawford shoots and scores against Helix.

Learning to play at a competitive level was Coach Sullivan's goal for the girls' varsity basketball team. After the majority of the team graduated last year, they were left with only a few returnees.

Senior Pam Crawford and junior Kelley Walch, the only experienced varsity members, led the team as captains and high scorers. Notables from last year's j.v. were Linda Standring and Andrea Bravo. "Coach Sullivan," said Linda Standring, "knows the game of basketball well. He has taught us all a great deal that will help us next year."

The team looks forward to utilizing their experience and knowledge in a successful season next year since they will have many returning players.

Teamwork Scores Too

Though it was the first year of junior varsity competition for the entire team, it wasn't the first year of play for many. Bryan Palmer, David Clay, Jason Berkshire, Rick Strom, and Jason Barbeau all used their experience from the Freshmen League for successful and productive junior varsity play.

Under the direction of Joe Uden and Bill Sullivan, this young group of boys became a mature team. Hours of shooting, dribbling, and rebounding resulted in a winning season and a sense of camaraderie. Said Apollo Kolias, "We were really one unit on the court."

During the varsity CIF playoff game, Bryan Palmer earned the honor of wearing a varsity uniform. Fans are sure to see Bryan and others winning in varsity uniforms next year.

Shooting over a Granite Hills player, sophomore Bryan Palmer scores another two points for El Cap.

As Jason Berkshire goes up for a shot, Eagles players attempt to regain control.

The opponents are confused as Jason Barbeau makes a swift move towards the basket.

During a time-out, Coach McLevy discusses strategy.

Aiming For The Top

With a new coach and freshman talent, players looked forward to this season.

Coach McLevy worked her girls in shooting, dribbling, and passing. The practice proved useful for the team's ability to move the ball up and down the court. Top ball handler Toni Zimmerman and rebound specialist Toni Sprecco were especially successful. Freshmen such as Kim Tapley helped to give the team a balanced feel. Said Kim, "We have shooters, we have rebounders, and we have good defensive players. We just have to bring it all together." This coordination takes experience and by playing junior varsity sports these girls are on their way.

Dribbling quickly to the basket, Toni Sprecco prepares to score two points for her team.

As a highly competitive team, El Capitan boys' track has many notable athletes. The team captain, Brian Boggess competed in the California State meet last year which provided him with the necessary leadership required for the position. His track knowledge also contributed certain strengths to the team in the field events such as the discus and shot put. Other seniors who led the team were Devon Winthrop who ran the 400 meter, Don Gabriella, leader of the distance runners, pole vaulter Jim Duke, and Mike Tapley, a high jumper and hurdler.

Along with these senior tracksters were a number of underclass athletes. "I was really impressed with the talent of the sophomore athletes. They were a great addition in both the track and field events," stated senior Don Gabriella. These athletes included Jim Barton, David Hillberg, Brian Palmer and Kurt Wilkins. Jefferson Love and Mike Poffenbarger were the only freshmen on the varsity track team.

"This year's performances were as expected. We had many strong points and many strong athletes. I was pleased with our performance as a team," commented Coach Brooks.

Erin Murray tries for a personal record against Mt. Carmel.

With a well balanced junior varsity team, success on the track was guaranteed. With powerful individuals, team scores proved to be of winning proportions. First place finishes were achieved in all areas. Konstantine Kendreich wrapped up distances, Toby McLaughlin won sprints, and teammates such as Tyler Gaerin, Mike Murray, and Erin Murray were successful in field events.

Though the race was against the clock, track served to bring people with a love for athletics, their school, and competition together for hard work and a good time.

The girl's team, as they proved last year, was strong in 1986 with experience, depth, and talent. The experience was exemplified by Jennifer Clinger, Tammie Hiler and Cindy Noriega (all of whom were selected for the spot of girl's team captain). Tammie Hiler continued her efforts in the sprints and relays hurdles, and as Cindy Noriega led her events in the long and triple jumps and the relay as well. This year's girl's team displayed a great deal of potential with a fine group of freshmen that added strength and balance to each event, and promise to be a definite asset to the next few years of track. Other outstanding girls were Joy Principe in the sprints, and Nancy Coleman in the quarter-mile, Tam-mie Kniffing and Danice Vonfeldt in tances, Linda Standring in the discus. Liza Tumang in both the hurdles and jump. "I feel we have the potential to be the most outstanding girl's track team El Capitan has ever had," stated Coach Storm prior to the season's start. She wasn't disappointed.

Because a runner ran out of their zone in the 440 relay, Joy Principe's last leg, first place finish was disqualified.

Friends and teammates Tammy Kniffing and Danice VonFeldt match their strides throughout the race until the final yards when Tammy kicks in to win.

New Blood Makes More Goals

By Kristine Stanzick

With a team consisting of nearly half freshmen, El Capitan was expecting to have a low-key but strong season. The season was one for discovering the strengths of the newer players, but what is wasn't was low-key.

The team began with an average record. After the first four games, the team played in the Eagles Tournament during Christmas vacation. They won four of the five games and tied the fifth game 0-0. Goalie Tammie Hiler shut-out every opponent with no goals against her the entire tournament. Unfortunately because of an ineligible player the tournament and the first four league games were forfeited.

This seemed only to make the team closer. They banded together and drove full-force into their next opponent; first place Grossmont High School. El Capitan tied the game 1-1 with the saving goal by Kim Varvel. By that, El Capitan made their presence known. Some notable players were Karen Ransweiler who was awarded first team All-league, and Senior goalie Tammie Hiler who won All-league Honorable Mention. The starting freshman crew was comprised of Becky Herzig, sweeper Kerrie Wilkins who was awarded All-league Honorable Mention, defender Shirley Desautels, forward Kim Varvel who made the second team All-league, and halfback Dinger Gerdes.

The team had a well-rounded year. Their morale was unfailing and they played tough throughout the season.

“People picked us to win maybe one game this year. We sure surprised them,” commented Brian Gerdes. Why did El Capitan do so surprisingly well this season? Mainly because of first year coach, Ron Peterson. Peterson, a former star player at Granite Hills, brought El Capitan’s soccer team to the best season in the history of the sport at this school. “Coach turned this team around. Ron expects us to win. In the past we never had the desire to win,” said Gerdes.

The rest of the team agreed; Peterson inspired the players and made them proud to play for El Capitan. “Ron really makes us work, his drills have helped us a lot in our passing and ball handling,” said freshman player Tim VonFeldt.

The hard work showed through in the team’s accomplishments. Besides ending with a very respectable record, the team defeated last year’s C.I.F. champions, Granite Hills, who have not given up a game in two years. “The win over Granite really lifted our spirits, commented senior Phil Bassett.

The Vaquero’s excellent season did not go without notice. Coach Ron Peterson was elected as Coach of the Year. Senior player Ron Jackson led the team by being elected to first team All-Grossmont league while David Chareonsuphiphat again accepted the second team All-league title. Goalie Bill Kitts and defender Brian Gerdes received Honorable Mention for their skills.

The girls' swim team approached the season with an optimistic outlook. "With a varsity team of almost all returning swimmers and a j.v. team full of talented new swimmers. I believe we will do well," stated Coach McDonald prior to the season's beginning.

Some notable swimmers on the varsity team were Rachel Brawdy, Kelly Kaiser and Janet Hodges; all four year lettermen in the sport.

The girls swam five days a week, two hours a day. They practiced techniques and the various strokes and following warm-ups, the team swam 100-150 laps a day on the average.

The j.v. team had many hopefuls such as Jennifer Lenkowec and Michelle Houseman. They were expected to be greatly improved and looking forward to varsity next year.

Under the coaching of Mr. Hedberg, our team has gone far in the three years I've been a part of it," expressed senior Chris Krickhahn. The boys' swim team has increased in both size and experience. Leaders of the team were seniors Chris Krickhahn, Rob Krueger and Brett Barnett, juniors Troy Wilson and Brad Bennett, and sophomore Kevin Krickhahn.

With a team filled with so many experienced swimmers, they were expected to shine. "Not only were we expected to stand out in the league, we showed our opponents that we could win both individually and as a team," said Coach Hedberg.

Keeping An Eye On The Pennant

By Scott P. Murray

Second-year coach Steve Vickery's goal for 1986 was for his Vaqueros to "turn the corner" of mediocrity. Since El Cap's last championship in 1975, Vickery has watched the baseball program sag and the teams fall lower and lower in the Grossmont League standings. In only his first year, the 1970 El Cap graduate led his team to a 7-9 league record. But that wasn't his only accomplishment. He also installed two batting cages with money earned by his players and the Stadium Association in order to boost the team's success. Even though the Vaqueros improved greatly on the field and off, Vickery wasn't yet satisfied. In 1986, he has installed new dug-outs and is making plans for more additions in 1987. With his aggressive style and his contagious enthusiasm, he intends to turn El Cap baseball around, and put the team near or at the top of the standings. But Coach Vickery doesn't believe in five year plans, or even two year plans. His style gets results, which are evident in the turn-around he made with the Valhalla program.

Losing seven starters from 1985, one would expect the Vaqueros to have trouble making ground on the leaders of what is referred to as the toughest league in the county. But El Cap's younger, smaller lineup is full of confident and aggressive players seeking Vickery's common goal. With bullpen aces Rob Arnold (Jr.) and Mike Reed Sr.) leading the way, and sluggers Steve Nowlan (Sr.), Jim Tixier (Sr.), knocking in runs, El Cap is one of the most exciting teams around.

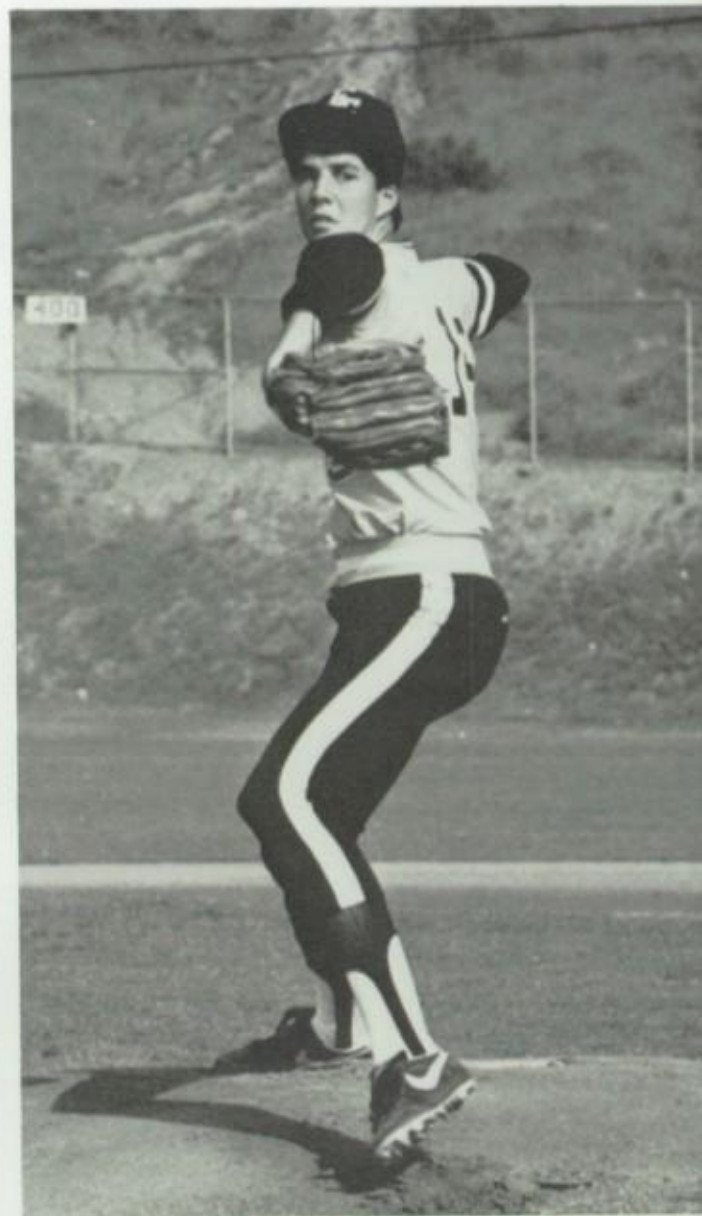

In addition to their on-the-field work, Vickery and his team have joined with the Padres and three other Grossmont league teams in a drug awareness program. This program encourages El Cap players, as well as the youth of the community to stay away from drug and alcohol addiction. Hopefully, this program will be extended to all athletic teams at the school in order to provide El Cap athletics with the best athletes possible.

In their final season at El Cap are seniors Steve Nowlan, Scott Murray, Mike Reed, Jim Tixier, and Ron Peeler. They will leave behind an experienced group led by Jerry Aldridge, Rob Arnold, Dan Neshiem, Wally Pimentel, and Ruben "Rat" Tellez. These, the rest of the Vaqueros, and their coach will surely be working even harder to restore the championship reputation once held by El Capitan.

Rounding All The Bases

With talk of the Padre's training camp in the air, the Vaquero's j.v. baseball team began conditioning for their season. Drills primarily consisted of infield play and batting practice in order to sharpen skills.

In the past, the j.v. players were overshadowed by their varsity counterparts. These athletes were different. Jason Phipps, freshman pitcher, was named one of the best athletes on this talent-rich team. "Jason stands a great chance of being moved up to varsity in only his sophomore year," stated trainer and coach Rudy Chavez. Other players pointed out by Chavez as exceptional were Jeremy Ellis, noted for his fielding, and Jason Escota for his batting abilities.

Gaining respect by playing with aggression and a new-found enthusiasm, El Capitan baseball has improved game by game. Coach Uden received rave reviews for his work in reviving the players spirit.

With a second year coach, and a more experienced team, things look a lot better this year than last," stated sophomore player Tracie Kirk of the j.v. softball team.

Some returning players who led the team were Tracie Kirk, Jeannette Mulkins and Geneva Brown. Sophomore Shannon Turner, strong at the plate, and freshman Kim Tapley, in her first year of j.v., helped the team succeed in their desire for a winning season. Daily after school they met to hit, field, and pitch. The goal of firmly instilling these skills into the j.v. softball team was accomplished by Landa Harris. The goal of utilizing these skills for a successful season was accomplished by each member of the team.

Softball Steals The Show

Softball combines endurance, hand-eye coordination, and teamwork. With skills such as base running, batting, and fielding to perfect, practices were long and tiring. Said Cathy Singer, "You leave the field knowing you've worked-out. However, it's all worth it when the scoreboard says you've won."

Returning lettermen Melissa Rose, Angie Bryant, Terri Robinson, Tanya Romero, and Toni Zimmerman had experience on their side. Cathy adds, "The returnees are great for emotional support."

The year was successful and another winning team is expected next year.

Match Skills

This year's wrestling teams began their seasons with a long list of goals. Coach Osborn and Cooper set out to help them achieve as many of these goals as possible.

The varsity season was an exceptional one in that the wrestlers were "sticking it out," says Coach Cooper. Their main goal was to rise from the bottom of the Grossmont League. To accomplish this goal the team held difficult practices for nearly two hours a day. They were led through practices by the team captains; senior Troy Pinkerton and junior Kevin Osborn. Other team standouts include junior Aaron Bennett and sophomore Thung Thai. However, due to injury and ineligibility, the team was only able to build spirit, morale, and man-power this season. Self discipline was also a goal. "It (selfdiscipline) is the best attribute a person can gain from wrestling," stated Coach Osborn.

The j.v. team also worked on their self discipline. The team finished in sixth place but had some stand-out wrestlers to make the team noticed. Outstanding sophomores Nino Dimaio and Steve Drimmel, and freshman Adam Cook led El Capitan's j.v. squad. Their goals were to gain valuable mat experience, prepare for varsity, and improve their wrestling skills; all of which they accomplished.

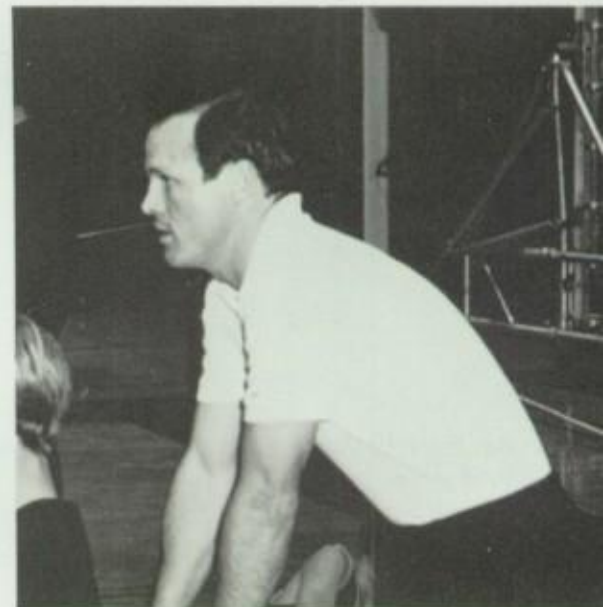

With the return of the Varsity Wrestlers and the movement of the j.v. wrestlers to varsity, El Capitan will definitely fulfill their goal of moving up in the Grossmont League.

Not A Lot Of Love

The varsity tennis team was much improved over last year's team. "The improvement was due to the enthusiasm and dedication of Coach Newton," stated senior Geoff Adams. The team's dedication took them through two hour a day practices which consisted of drills and challenges against teammates. First year player and team captain, Mike Hurst was responsible for getting the practices started.

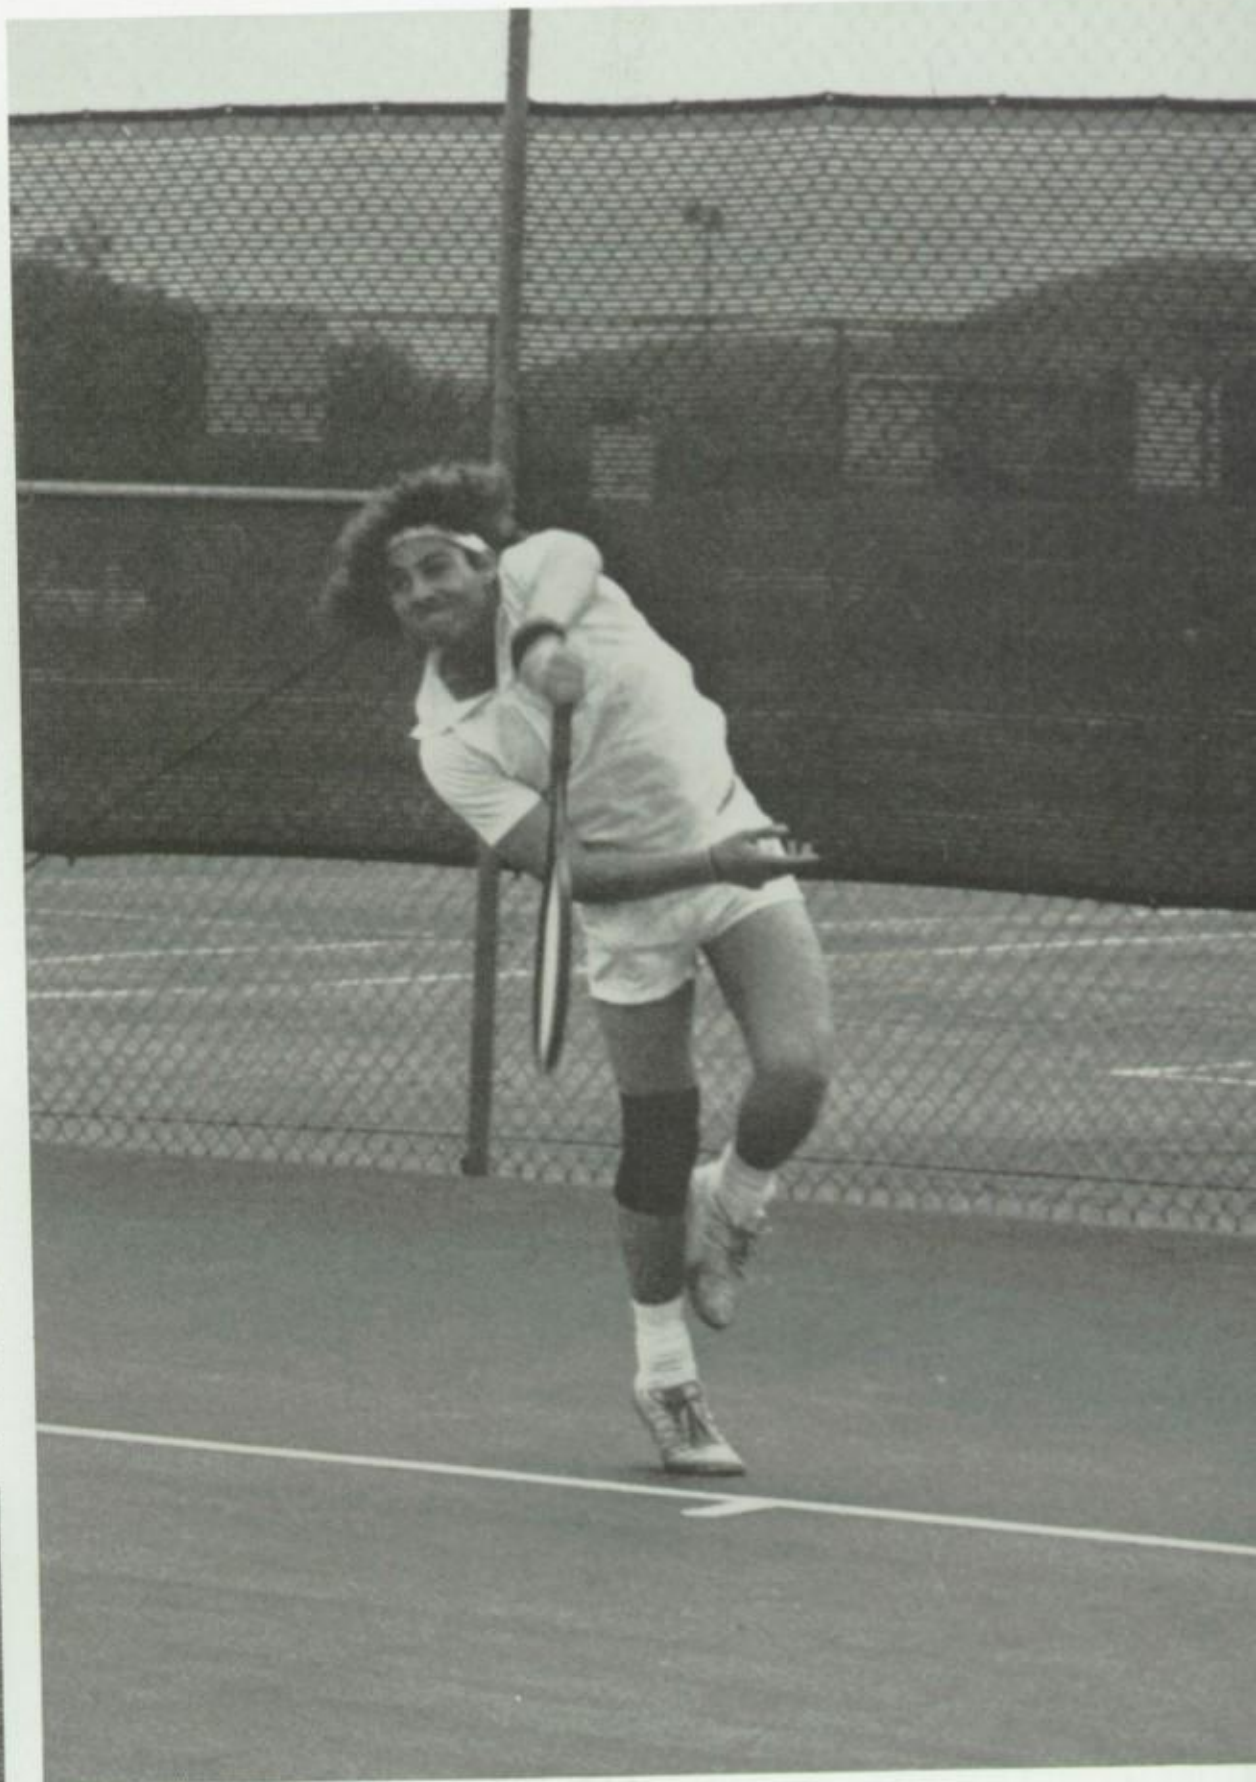

The varsity team was greatly strengthened by freshman singles player Joey Dunn and the continued improvement of sophomore singles player Tung Thai. The main singles strength, however, was attributed to senior Glen Bauer and last year's first team All-league choice, Geoff Adams.

The doubles teams were led by Mike (Temper) Chelsea and Greg (Tantrum) Branson who formed the number one team while Mike Hurst and Jason Barbeau formed the number two team. Other doubles players were sophomore Andy Johns and senior Mike Hinson.

"I am looking forward to continued improvement and stature in the El Cap tennis program," said Coach Newton. With nearly a full team of experienced returning players, El Capitan tennis has become a dominating force in the Grossmont League.

Excited over his return, Geoff Adams, first seat singles varsity player, breaks his opponents serve to win the set.

What A Racquet

Anyone who has ever held a racquet knows tennis is more difficult than it seems. It takes intense practice to look like a John McEnroe or a Boris Becker on the court.

The j.v. team recognized the importance of practice and compensated with drills, drills, and more drills. Learning effective tennis takes quality practice and quality time on the court.

Three-point drills, conditioning, and intra-squad matches taught players how to make the most of their physical and mental games. "Successful serves and volleys were visualized before the ball ever went into play. If your mind says it'll happen, it will," said first year player Jay Done. He also added, "This mental toughness will help me on the courts and in the classroom."

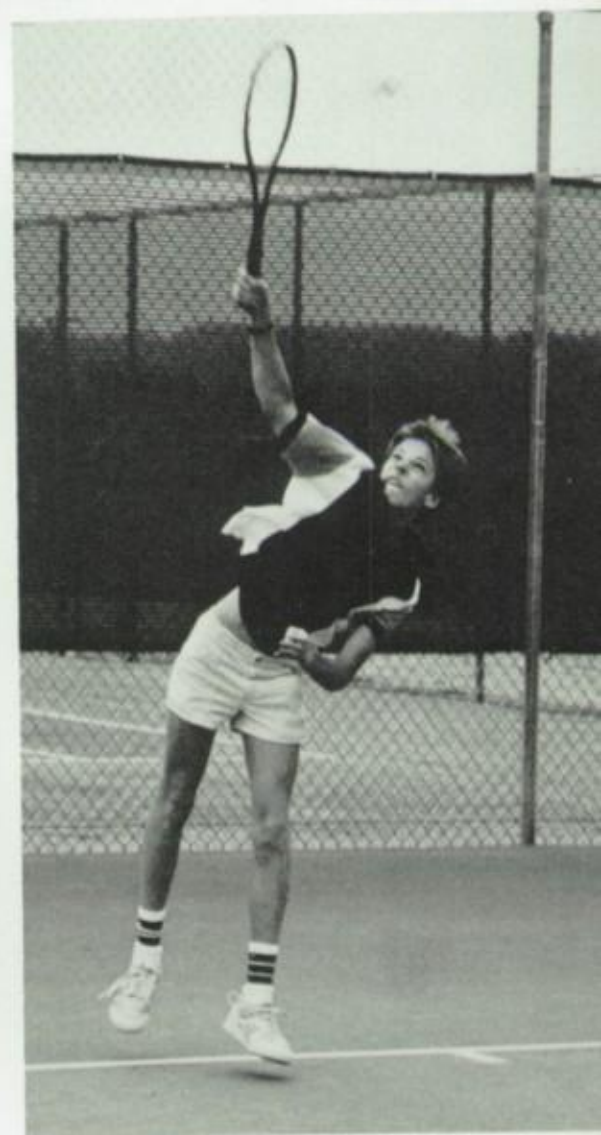

In the cold stormy weather of the tennis match, Kurt Hahn, Coach Newton, and Dennis Johns watch the j.v. team.

Gymnastics Builds Flexibility

Vith long workouts on apparatus and many hours in the weight room, the gymnastics team built strength and increased flexibility.

Second year coach Diane Perkins spent much time teaching the basic tumbling skills, gymnastic techniques, and dance moves needed on a competitive level. The highest division for high school gymnastics is the optional category. These gymnasts are able to deviate from the required routines and include their own personalities. Optional gymnasts include Serena Blanks and Jodi Baker. All classes competed on the floor, beam, bars, and vault.

Said Serena Blanks, "With so many stunts required, you become more intune and in command of your body."

On November 8, 1985 as the students gathered for the homecoming assembly, they wondered who the main attraction would be. As the individual teams were introduced the excitement built. When Cathy Singer finally introduced Rolf Bernirshke, the crowd went wild. As Rolf spoke about his career in pro football, the crowd became silent and the football players leaned forward in their seats to listen. Rolf shared a story about his first piece of fan mail. It was from a 12-year old boy, who told Rolf to hang in there against the Raiders, and that he could win. In that game Rolf's kick won the game. His second piece of fan mail was from the same boy simply stating, "I told you so."

Rolf said as a teenager he had a dream to kiss a homecoming queen. Since our queen had not yet been crowned, Karen Ransweiler was chosen since she was the person behind homecoming preparations. As Rolf kissed Karen, many girls in the crowd expressed, "I wish it was me."

Boosting the spirit of the assembly crowd, varsity cheerleader Michelle Betts fires up for the game against Grossmont.

While observing the student body's excitement, Coach Hedberg and Mr. Nugent recall their own homecoming festivities.

The rest of the assembly consisted of the crowning of the princesses, Michelle Clark, Natalie Smith, Amy Fishburn, Tammy Hicks, Julie Brennen and the crowning of the princes, Matt Barlow, Tim Durst, Jeff Hoss, Steve Nowlan, and John Cruz by Rolf. The spirit yell was lead by Cathy Singer, the chariot race was won by the seniors, the care packages were given to the football players, and the Drill Team performed led by Stacey McConaughy. At the end Rolf said, "Good Luck" and ended the 1985-86 homecoming assembly.

Behind The Scenes

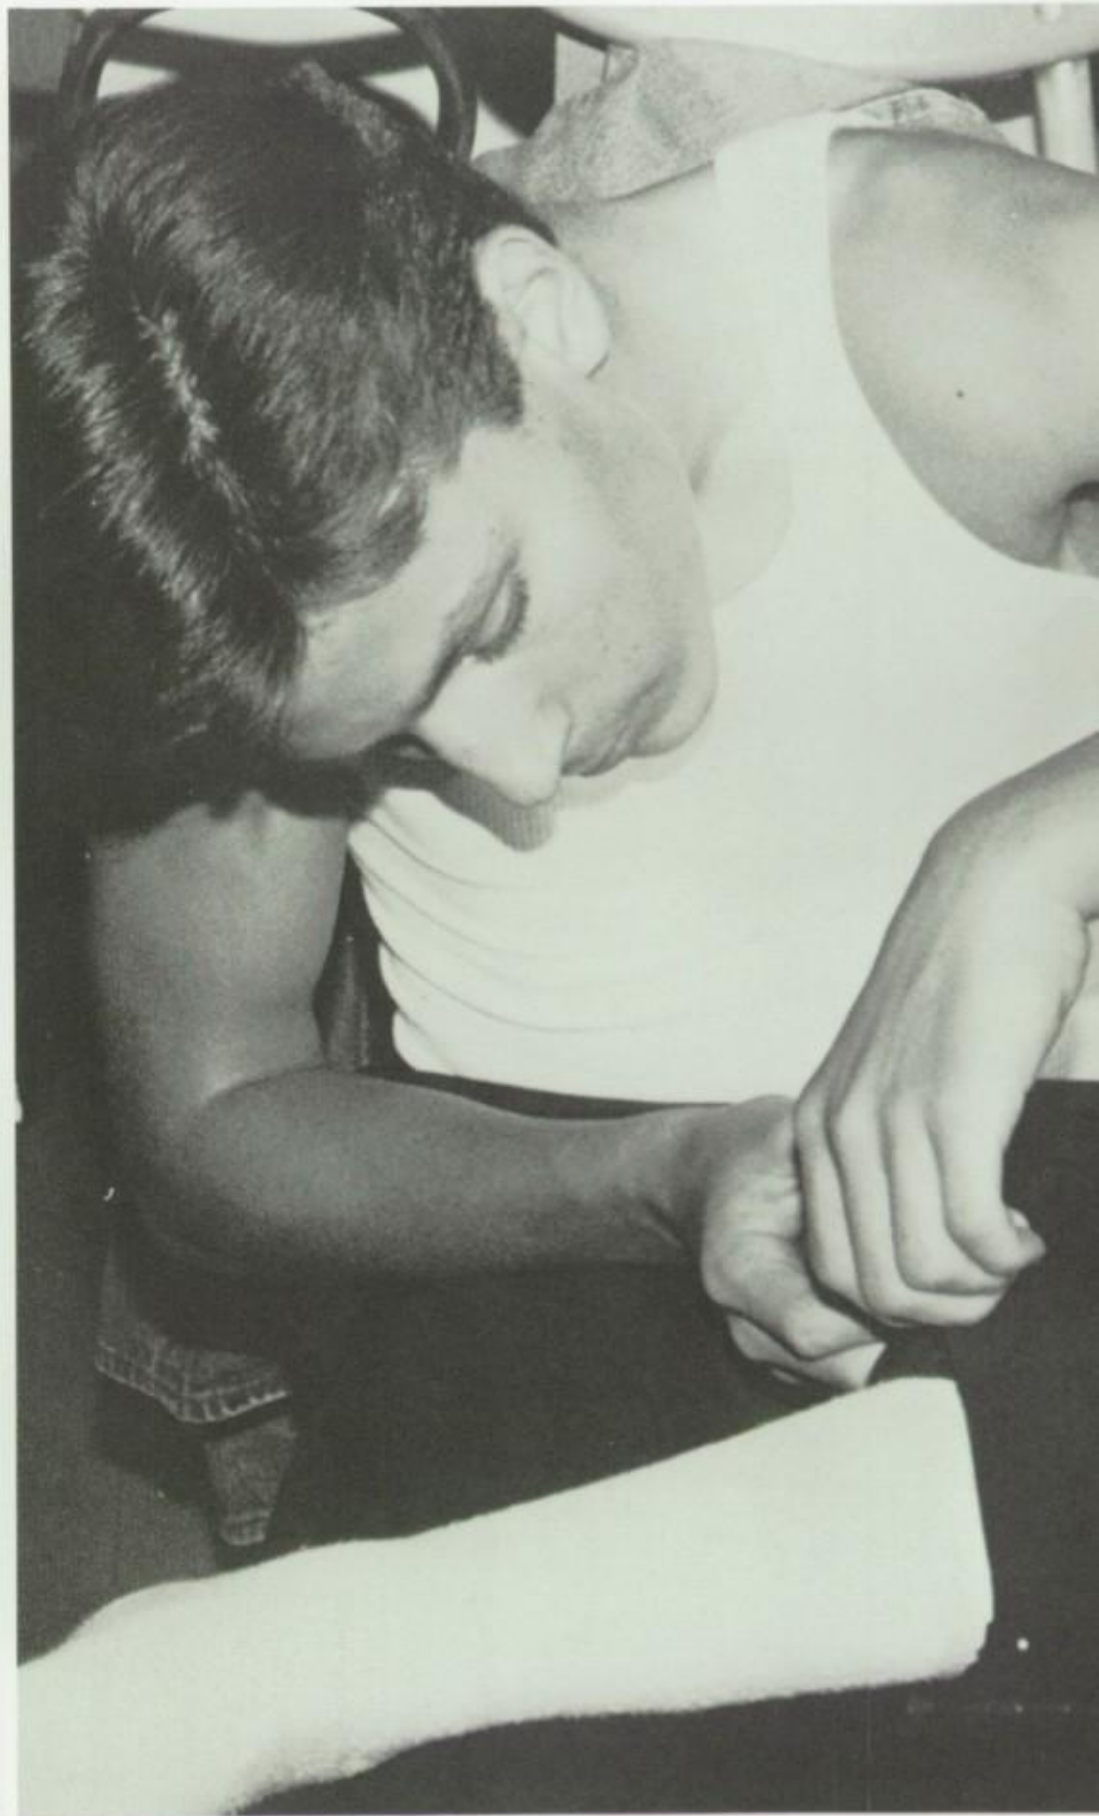

6th Period Drama Class

It is in their best interest to have good publicity for witches, so Sean Halsey, Jill Barnett, and Carol Starkweather conjure a spell to bring the author to them. Their special effect spell was created by burning a picture of the author with flash powder.

200 Bell, Book & Candle

Since costumes are not custom-made for the actors, Sean Halsey makes some necessary temporary alterations on his trousers prior to the evening's performance.

Assistant director Nadia Goodvin shares some laughter with Sean Halsey and helps him backstage by fixing his bow tie before the first curtain.

Doug Easterly portrays the character Sidney Redlitch, an author who is searching for evidence that witchcraft does exist. Little does he realize that he is already speaking to two witches and his arguments are completely unnecessary.

The character Mrs. Holroyd, better known as Auntie, is a middle-aged woman played by Carol Starkweather. It took nearly half an hour to apply the make-up to age her face sufficiently for the part.

 BELL, BOOK AND CANDLE

A three act romantic comedy, "Bell, Book, and Candle" was cast differently than other productions. Each role had two actors playing a single part that alternated performances nightly. The cast included Jill Barnett, Lisa Scott, Jeff Cole, Marcus Campbell, Carol Starkweather, Chris Wirtz, Joe Laughead, Sean Halsey, Douglas Easterly, and Pearl the Cat.

Without a competent crew, rehearsals would be for naught. Assistant Director Nadia Goodvin and Assistant Technical Director Shawn Heartly worked under the guidance of Joani Baker-Bush. Many other people were connected to the performances in areas of costumes, props, refreshments, tickets, and publicity. Other students assisted in technical duties. These included Scott Baird, Jim Bennett, Bobby Sarmiento, Ken Guinop, David Brosman, Matt Wagner, Gretchen Oslie, Jamie Rice, Sharron White, Barbara Bellis, Chris Armaby, Bev Walsh, Eureka Easterly, Jennifer Freeman, Crystal Hopson, Tracy Hobwood, Mike Tapley, Shawna Silverthorn, Kim Dudgeon, and Sonja Knipp. All were period six drama students.

Celebration In Song And Dance

Christmas celebrations take many shapes and forms. The performing arts students heralded the holiday season offering their best performances by singing, dancing, and playing musical numbers.

The air was electric and moved people through emotional ranges. Some songs were fun and others solemn and each number was carefully choreographed and executed. The colorful costumes completed the festive look and feel. One audience member said, "It's hard to believe these are only high school students. They perform like pros."

For the holiday program, the girls' chorus sang a medley of "I'll Be Home For Christmas" and a jazz rendition of "Jingle Bells."

The soldiers begin to come to life and march in formation.

During the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," the soldiers move in a synchronized domino line that brought delighted applause from the audience.

Fun Where Ever You Are

By Team KSK

In the diverse area we live in, off campus hours were spent in many different places doing different things.

Whether at the desert, in the mountains, at the beach, or in the backyard, students made their own fun. Off-roading, backpacking, and surfing only added to the feelings of camaraderie shared between friends.

Favorite off campus spots were Law Street, Mariner's Point, and Barn, 7-11, T.D.S. Flats, and the Newly built Burger King.

With the final bell on Friday, students forgot school and made the nights activities their prime concern; second only to their Saturday night plans. The major concern was who would be where at what time and if you too wanted to join them. If the prospects weren't exciting, new plans and new places were uncovered.

Anticipating their upcoming trip to the desert, freshmen Rob White and Tim Simpson test the 200X in the backyard.

Surfing every chance he gets, Jeff Blanco catches a wave at his favorite surf spot; Rock Pile.

One wouldn't think so by the weather report, but El Capitan did have a white Christmas.

On December 14th at eight o'clock in the morning, preparation began. Seniors worked for nearly seven hours setting up tables and hanging decorations under the supervision of Commissioner of Activities Robin Stansbury. "Having the dance in Foster Hall is less expensive for the couples and because of the close proximity we have a better show of underclassmen," stated Robin Stansbury. "After the preparations are completed, no one will even know they were in a high school gym."

As couples began their walk down the candlelit hall, the snow began falling. Balloons covered the entrance way ceiling and silver snowflakes filled the air. Two Christmas trees were lit and decorated with bulbs bearing each couples' names. The floor filled quickly with couples dancing to the music of Steve West of 91X.

Later the music quieted for the announcement of the Christmas court. Shannon Hurst was crowned freshman princess, Julia Bravo and Chris Carmichael were the sophomore princess and prince, and Shane Cawthor and Holly Johnson were voted junior prince and princess. The suspense built as the announcement of King and Queen began. Nicole Dreis and Mike Hinson were crowned as the 1985 Christmas dance queen and king.

Senior Michelle Clark said, "I can't remember ever enjoying myself so much. You could see everybody was happy and really enjoying themselves."

Juli Becker searches for the ornament bearing her and her date's names.

The floors filled quickly with close-dancing couples as a slow song was played.

Christmas dance Queen and King: Nicole Dreis and Mike Hinson.

Graduated senior Jon Comford comes back to El Capitan to attend the Christmas dance with close friend Michelle Clark.

In the past, the Christmas dance has been at downtown hotels. This year, underclassmen Janel and Joel Comford are happy that it was in the gym so that they too could attend.

A White Christmas

I'm dreaming of a white Christmas,
Just like the ones I used to know,
Where the tree tops glisten,
And children listen,
To hear sleigh bells in the snow.
I'm dreaming of a white Christmas,
With every Christmas card I write,
May your days be merry and bright,
and may all your Christmas' be white!

El Cap Christmas Spirit Travels To Other

By Cindy Noriega

The room was wall to wall wrapping paper, toys, and clothing. Students rotated in and out the entire day to wrap gifts for children less fortunate than themselves and who without their efforts might not hear from Santa.

Students were actively involved in the spirit of giving and helping others. One student summed up the feelings of many by saying "I enjoy helping others, and it feels good to do so."

Students purchased toys, food, sundries, and clothing with their own money. When the gifts were wrapped and ready to be shipped off, it took 3 truck loads to deliver the presents.

Mrs. McClain organized the second annual Christmas wrapping in conjunction with a non-profit organization called Orphan Kids INC. Through this project, the El Cap Christmas spirit traveled to many Mexican children.

Amidst the hustle and bustle of the holiday season, Mrs. McClain took time out from regular class sessions to teach a lesson in giving.

With one present wrapped and one to go, Michael Carlson helped play Santa to the needy children in Mexico.

Putting the final touches on her presents, Meg Skinner is delighted to be participating in a project that promotes the real spirit of the holiday season.

After the wrapping was completed, Robert Laird, Henry Ring, and Ray Brassell prepared the presents for transport to Mexico.

On November 27, 1985, at the Mt. Helix Amphitheatre, the Humanities classes held their first annual Greco/Roman Festival. The students wore and performed their own plays and skits based on ancient Greek and Roman mythology. The story of King Midas called, "The Toilet Zone", the birth of Aphrodite titled, "Splash" and a satire of the Trojan Horse entitled, "The Trojan Horse in East L.A.", were just a few of the many well performed plays. The students also sampled some Greek and Roman cuisine. "The kids had to put a lot of effort into their assignments, but they seemed to enjoy themselves," said Mr. Westdall.

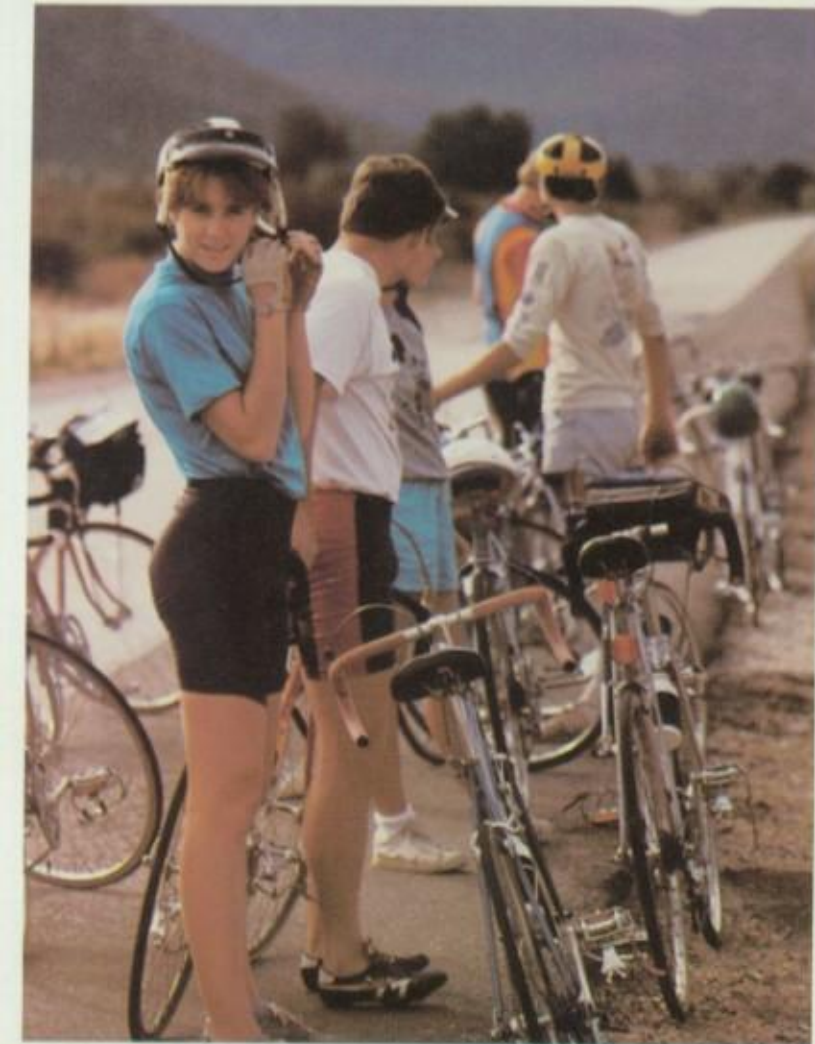

During the beginning of the school year, the Humanities classes studied ancient Greek and Roman civilizations. One of their main objectives was to put on and perform their own Greco/Roman Festival.

The Humanities program was team taught by Lincoln Westdall and Jan Coulsby. It combined literature and world history courses in a two hour period for college prep and honors students.

CLUBS

Change The Presses!!!

Editor Tammy Hicks may have panicked before every issue, but published successful issues monthly.

Star reporter Debra Roberts' articles brought in rave reviews during class read-a-rounds.

The Horizon had a new look this year. With its first issue this fall, the Horizon staff abandoned the tabloid style and returned to a magazine-style format. This switch was made because the district purchased a new printing press to reduce the cost of producing papers for schools. Consequently, the Horizon could be published monthly. However, the training for the district staff to use the new machine delayed production and raised costs. Even with these setbacks, the staff stuck to their commitment of a monthly paper.

Every issue began with brainstorming. Story ideas came mostly from school news and interesting events outside of school. The stories were then assigned and written. After a draft was on paper, the read-a-rounds began.

which involved the entire class editing other's stories. The articles were re-written and given to the editor, Tammy Hicks. She edited and returned them for an additional rewrite. However, that's not always the last rewrite. Ms. Schuster, the advisor, edited them for a third time and handed them back for — yes, another rewrite. The articles were then sent to the typesetter. The typesetter returned them in the form of galleys, which must be edited again. Laying out the paper is much like putting a puzzle together. Each story, headline, ad, and picture must fit into the limited space of the columns. The galleys are used to lay out the paper and it took three days for the class to complete the layout. "Each issue I would be concerned whether we would make our deadline or not, but everyone worked as a team and we made the deadline everytime," said Tammy.

Even though the pressure was eased because the writing and editing was completed, the job was not finished. The paper went to the printer, to get trimmed. Meanwhile, the class was already working on its next issue.

In April, the staff reverted to the tabloid style for two reasons. First, it was more economical and second, the staff liked the newsprint better.

Tammy Hicks and Nadia Goodwin along with Ms. Schuster attended a journalism workshop in Tucson, Az. The workshop included guest speakers, evaluation of issues, and writing competition. "Being with so many people with a common interest is a great learning experience. The ideas shared will be valuable next year," said Nadia Goodwin. The class included: Top row: Ms. Schuster, Cindy Priser, Lisa Bluffin, Ray Gussac, and John Kemp. Front row: Tammy Hicks, Rikki Gibson, and Don Gabriella.

The One's Who Make It Happen

By Debra Roberts

"The annual is a student publication, but we want it to have a professional look," said Kim White, co-editor of the yearbook. "Being a history book, the memories need to be complete and well edited; I don't want people to look at the annual twenty years from now and think it's incomplete."

"The annual problems are centered around having enough good pictures to choose from in time to meet our demanding deadlines," said Kim. Kurt Hahn, junior at El Cap, was the photo editor in charge of photo assignments and he took many pictures himself to meet annual staff needs. Boyd Anderson Photography handled mug shots and most of the group color photos as well as some special events and athletic contests.

Kim said there is much to be learned working on the annual: "One must be organized. I gained experience in leadership and how to get the most out of people."

Working on the annual involved individual work. Most things remained relaxed until a deadline approached; the room then became frantic. Additional pictures were taken, printed, and cropped to the correct size. The pages were designed by students, then checked by the editors and the advisor. The layout pages were mailed to the plant in Tennessee to be typeset and printed. Blue-line proofs were returned to the class, again to be proofread for mistakes. The corrections are sent back to Tennessee where the final pages were printed.

Students needed to find businesses that would advertise in the annual. "One must have a good working relationship," said Kim, "because we have to deal with so many companies and ask so much of them."

Sandy Schuster served as the annual staff's advisor with Matt Barlow, Kristine Stanzick, and Kim White as the co-editors.

Ms. Schuster and the editors stayed after school many days and worked additional hours in order to complete the annual on time. Kim commented, "There are over 1200 students expecting the annual in June. We're doing the best we can to provide a creative, well designed, and balanced perspective of El Cap's 1985-86 memories."

Over 150 students applied for the ASB class this year, and only 50 could be admitted for the first semester. Eleven more were removed from the class at the beginning of the second semester. "The applications for the class indicates how much spirit El Cap students have about their school; people are starting to care," said Matt Barlow, ASB's vice president.

To be successful, in the class takes dedication and hard work. The students not only designed and painted all of the various posters, they organized welcome week, pep rallies, class competitions, homecoming, leadership camp, the nominating convention, and at least one major assembly. The members also sold spirit items and tickets at sporting events. Brian Gerdes, ASB Commissioner of Sales, spent the entire night in a ticket booth during homecoming.

"I've learned the pressures of deadlines, leadership qualities, human relations, and how to help other people," commented

Matt Barlow. He also commented, "I didn't just get to supervise; it's been hard work. I've attended leadership conferences, and missed quite a few days at school to learn more about leadership. Even class grades have suffered, but the experience is worth it, especially when I look back in 10 years."

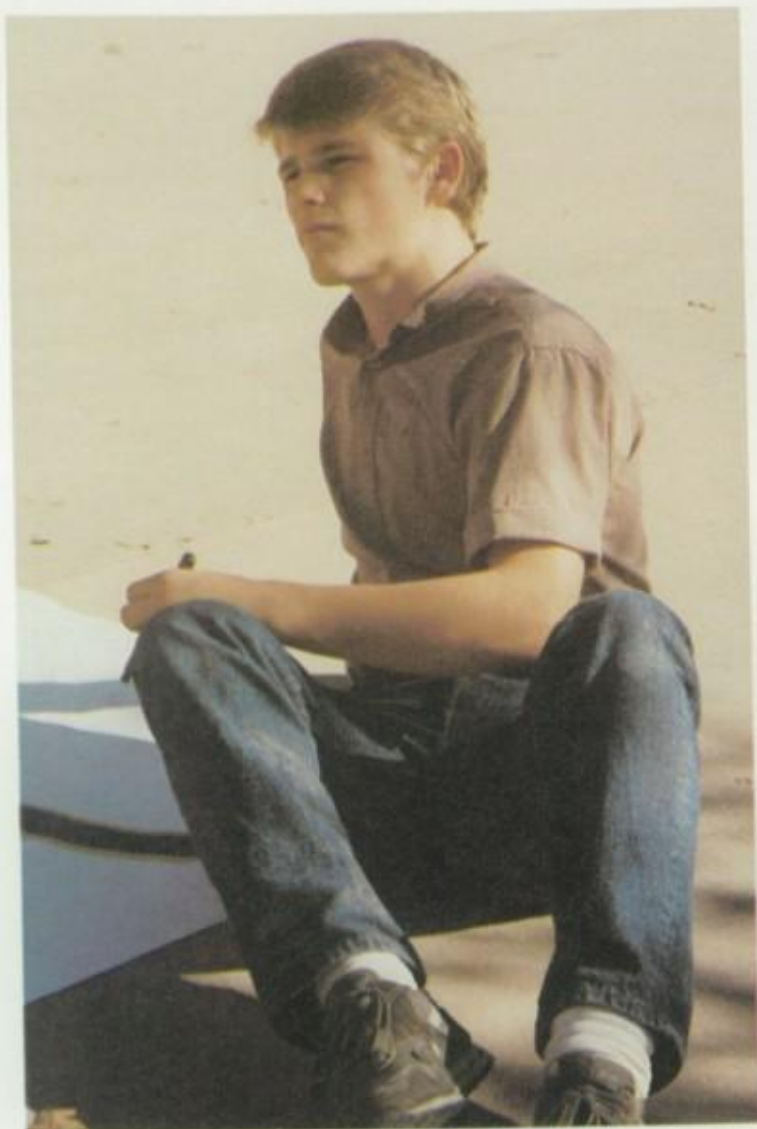

ASB's officers include David Chareonsuphiphat as president, Matt Barlow as vice president, Doug Easterly as treasurer, Denise Garcia as secretary, and Dan Plough as the club's advisor.

The objective of ASB this year was to raise $5,500 for a marquee to be built near the bus circle.

Matt gives the credit to David Chareonsuphiphat and Sue Foster of Henco Inc. for the production and selling of Trifles, a trivial pursuit game with 100 questions about Lakeside. Trifles will help celebrate Lakeside's 100 year anniversary this year, and raise enough money to purchase the marquee.

Julie Brennan, Varsity Head Cheerleader, shows her unsurpassed school spirit in another form; making banners for the Mount Miguel football game.

"ASB isn't fun and games. It takes hard work and cooperation to be successful. I feel this year's leaders 'stand above the rest'" states Kevin Osborn, ASB executive council member.

CHEERING WITH ENTHUSIASM

By Julie Brennan

The varsity cheerleaders earned three blue and two second place ribbons for their performances while attending a cheerleading camp sponsored by the National Cheerleading Association at SDSU last summer.

They spent four days improving their cheerleading skills. Each day at camp began with muscle-aching "cheerobics" to increase endurance and flexibility. The rest of the day was involved with learning new cheers, chants, pyramids, and partner stunts.

On the third day at camp they earned the highly esteemed Spirit Stick. This award was for good behavior in the dorms.

GUAM SQUAD came into being at camp. Nicole Birkel innocently remarked that their parking spots were so far away they might as well have been in Guam. The saying and the name stuck.

Camp was only the beginning for the squad. Over the summer they practiced every Monday through Thursday. When school began, they practiced twice weekly and cheered at events three times a week.

Enthusiasm combined with hard work made them an exceptional squad, one that generated high spirits among the student body throughout the year.

For another Vaquero score, Mascot Andy Tolley begins a set of push-ups to the newly acquired points.

When I say number, you say one . . . number one," was a popular cheer this season.

In a crowd pleasing pyramid, the Guam Squad entertains the stands during Vaquero time-out.

Estatic over another touchdown, the cheerleaders rush to the goal posts for the extra point.

J.V. Cheer: Not Just Skirts And Smiles

By Kim White

Though it may seem that being a cheerleader is all short skirts, pom-poms, and smiles, it's just not so. The trend with this year's J.V. squad was toward a more athletic approach.

They, along with the varsity squad, attended a National Cheerleading Association sponsored camp at SDSU over the summer.

At camp they honed and sharpened their cheerleading skills. However, their practices did not end when they went home from camp. They met twice a day over the summer and several times a week during the school year. They used their new found techniques to entertain the enthusiastic J.V. crowds.

J.V. teams at El Capitan did very well this year. This gave the squad something to really cheer about. And indeed they did. They were an average of three events to cheer per week. As the seasons changed so did the cheers. Intense practice and innovation placed to successfully make the transition from football pyramids to basketball cheers to baseball cheers.

This hard work prepares a J.V. cheerleader to commit herself to her next level step — varsity cheerleading.

DECA Means Business

ons are just one strategy Vice-President Brian Gerdes campaigning at the state competition.

Only in America, "the home of Free Enterprise," will you find a club similar to DECA. "DECA is, of course, Distributive Education Clubs of America; but it goes deeper than that. It is the only student organization throughout the United States that attracts students like ourselves to pursue careers in marketing and distribution," commented two-year President Richard Balk.

DECA is a student organization that competes in events involving different aspects of marketing and distribution of various products and services. The club is designed to help young entrepreneurs succeed in the business world.

But the DECA experience does not stop there. It is mandatory for the students to set up, work in, and operate a student store.

Some of the profit from sales go toward traveling expenses to National DECA sponsored competitions throughout the United States. These competitions against various other high school students enable each member to test their skills among the Nation's best marketing students. The ultimate goal for each DECA student is to reach the National Competition in Atlanta, Georgia. To achieve this prestigious goal, the student must finish in the top three places in their event in a state competition.

Despite all DECA's opportunities and open doors for success, it isn't for everyone. As Richard V. Balk states, "It takes listening, practicing, a positive self image, and excellent human relation skills. If you don't meet these qualifications. DECA isn't for you."

Allusions: Re-affirming Student Creativity

Allusions is El Capitan's award-winning literary arts magazine. Published annually, it is a collection of short stories, essays, poetry, artwork, and photographs by students and faculty. Submissions are given to Allusions and evaluated by students.

Submissions were graded on a scale of one to nine by six club members, one of whom must be an editor. Submissions which averaged seven or higher were published in the magazine and submissions which averaged between six and seven were returned to the author with editorial suggestions so they could be edited and re-submitted.

Allusions is usually organized and readied for publication during spring vacation and sold at the end of the year.

This year, Douglas P. Easterly was Editor-in-Chief. He hoped the publication would prove to be a high-quality magazine. "I want to show people students can really write. I know the talent is out there."

Among other editors this year were Rachel Brawdy, Mike Hinson, Mike Nichols, Nicole Dreis, Robin Stansbury, Cindy Noriega, Frances Carrillo, and Tamara Hicks. Mark Hanson is the magazine advisor. However, the magazine is entirely student run, and editorial decisions were made by students.

Exchange For Friendship

The I-Club is designed to help our foreign exchange students adjust to the U.S. and our school. We also use this time to learn about other countries, people and customs and in turn they learn about us," said I-Club President Cathy Lucas.

During the course of the year, the lunchtime meetings hosted guest speakers who shared the lifestyle and customs of their home country. Students listened intently to the various differences and sometimes similarities found between their cultures.

The I-Club sold advent calendars and gummy bears to help pay for the exchange students' year-books and other general expenses. The rest of their time was spent preparing for the Global Awareness Day held during second semester. On this day, all foreign exchange students in the Grossmont District gave speeches and were available to answer specific questions about themselves or their country. The students decided which countries they'd like to hear about most, and went to the assigned rooms to hear the speakers. Later a special lunch of pizza and sodas was served by the I-Club for the visiting exchange students.

Key Club Donates Life

The Key Club, a service club sponsored by Kiwanis of Lakeside, has over 100,000 members internationally. Club projects included the special olympics, a toy and food drive to help with Mexican relief, and the annual blood drive. The blood drive was the major community service provided by the Key club. Working with the San Diego Blood Bank, students over the age of seventeen were able to help stock dwindling reserves by donating a pint of blood. Most pints are used within two days and donators were assured that their "life" was used to help save another.

When school started in September, so did afternoon practice. Marching band spent at least an hour and a half perfecting halftime shows, marching techniques, and music. For days, the individual sections of the band worked on music with Mr. Brees, the new band director, long after the others had left for home. Practice was never cancelled because of weather; if the weather was bad, a marching practice became a music practice.

This work paid off. During the course of the year the band traveled to many events. The marching band took third place at the Artesia Parade, a first at the Columbus Day Parade, and another first at the Oceanside Parade. The members also performed their unique field show at the Orange Field Show Competition and the San Diegito Field Show Competition, placing fifth. They performed in noncompetitive events by marching the parade route at Disneyland, the Mother Goose Parade (in the rain), and playing music for the Specialty Team and Majorette performances.

For competition, the members would often wake up as early as 4:00 a.m. to be down at the band room by 5:00 a.m. on a Saturday morning. They would not arrive home until late, sometimes around midnight. The bus rides to and from these events were tedious, so members passed the time by singing, cheering, and trying anything to keep the sane members from sleeping.

During the winter months, the marching band is joined by other music students to create concert band. They were part of the Christmas Show held at the East County Performing Arts Center.

Golf is a great sport because it combines the natural elements of our scenic countryside and the intense competition of athletics," said player Danny Curtis.

Willowbrook is the beautiful home course of the golf team. "We're lucky to have such a fine course in close proximity available for us," said Coach Ed Curtis.

Golf has two dimensions; man vs. course and man vs. man. Golfing skills include timing, coordination, and strategy. Coach Curtis added, "A successful golfer must master the mental characteristics of the game as well as the physical."

With many performances across the state, the Specialty Team was busy. They performed at the Artesia Parade, the Lakeside Parade, and in a showcase at Disneyland, and placed well in competition.

Working with varsity cheer they collaborated on several dance routines that entertained fans at sporting events, assemblies, and rallies.

To help defray the costs of traveling, fundraisers such as car washes and carnation sales were held. The sales proved successful and consequently the year was productive.

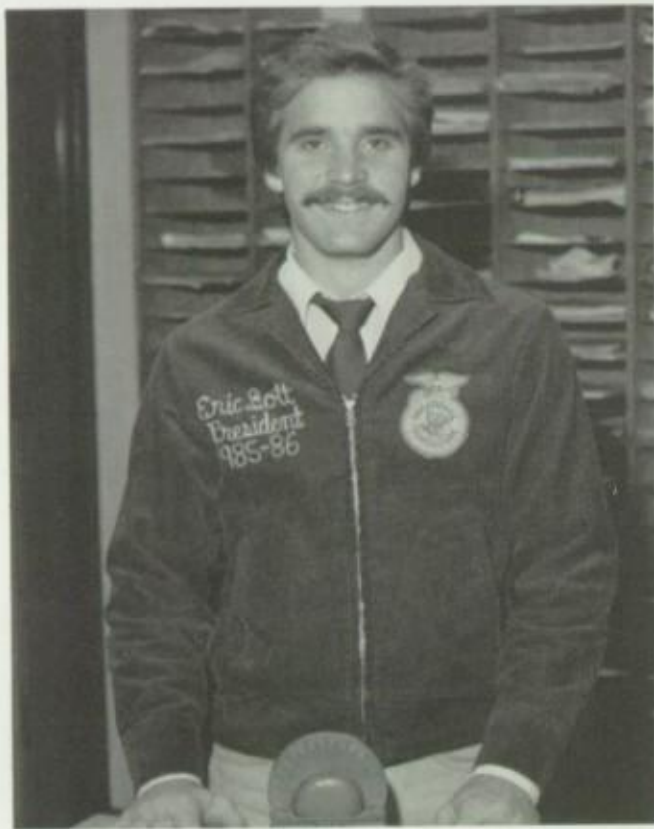

F.F.A.: A Growing Tradition

By Kristine L. Stanzick

As one of the most active of the 231 chapters of the Future Farmers of America, the El Capitan members learned about livestock, horses, floriculture, and meat judging through the various competitions that F.F.A. held.

F.F.A. was competitive in showing livestock. The members' animals were highly judged and always made a high market at either auctions in Lakeside or at the Del Mar Fair. The members also learned to be responsible for caring for and preparing an animal for show. "Making our animals look the best possible is just a small part compared to the raising of the animal," said Eric Bott, F.F.A. President. "But it is also a very important part because it shows how much a person cares about what they are doing."

These El Capitan F.F.A. members did care about what they were doing. They gained valuable knowledge and experience through F.F.A. Not only did they learn to care for and raise animals, they also learned about the essential industry of agriculture itself.

Music With A Message

By Ray Guassac & Kristine Stanzick

Choir began with a new director and new goals. They wanted to be more than just a singing group; they wanted to be a fun, interesting and talented singing group.

Director Jim Brees helped them to accomplish this along with President Kelly Kaiser. They formed the regular choir and a new show chorus. This show chorus was for singers who seriously wanted to perform while dancing to the songs they choreographed. Kelly Kaiser, Nancy Lowe, Laura Forrest, Wendy Roskos and Chrissy Olson all performed musicals in the show chorus.

The group, trying to come up with a fundraiser to utilize their talent, decided to offer singing telegrams to the community. They were as much fun to the giver, receiver and performer, as they were profitable.

The choir and show chorus performed at a variety of places. Among these were the East County Performing Arts Center, Sea Port Village, the Nazarine College in Point Loma, and Disneyland.

Scholarships For Lifers

The function of the California Scholarship Federation is to make students aware of and eligible for scholarship opportunities. Students with a G.P.A. of 3.6 or better are eligible for C.S.F. membership and the numerous scholarship benefits that accompany it.

Students who are able to maintain membership for all eight semesters earn the honor of being a life member. These members are eligible for several scholarships from the state of California.

Although the Federation doesn't promise every member a scholarship, most colleges recognize the honor of being a member and give members an edge on acceptance to the colleges of their choosing.

Mammoth Fun

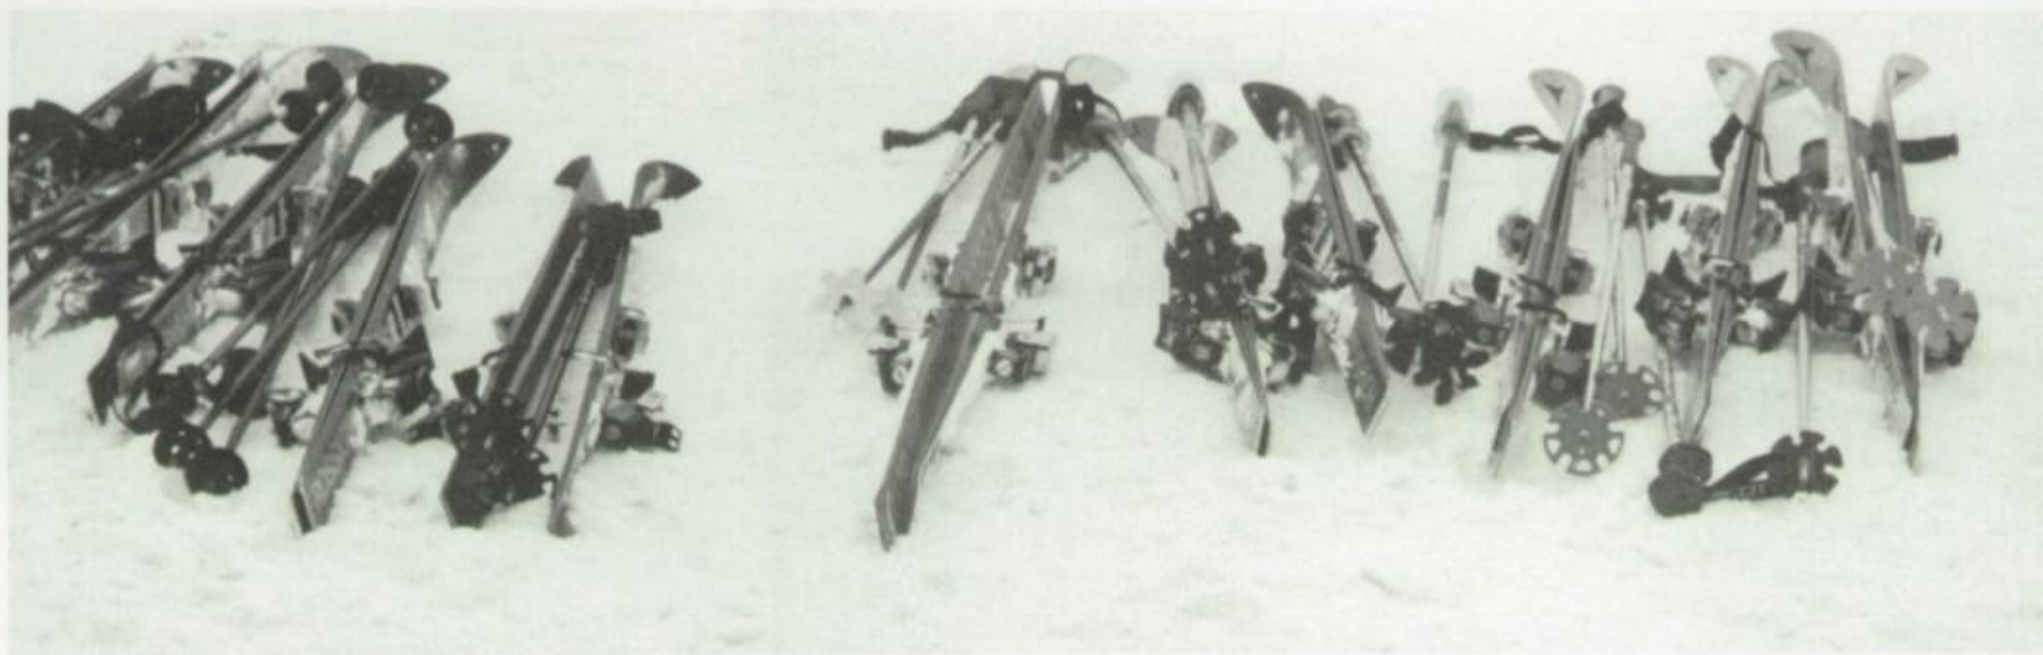

The ski club's season was a big success because of the help from Mr. Newman and Sonja Duckow," said sophomore Tracie Kirk. The club was started for the student's sake in order to allow for more skiing days and better sleeping facilities. Because of the group rates, members were able to stay longer and in nicer condos.

To become a club member, students had to pay five dollars to help pay for trips and the club pins. Members also received discount coupons for the next ski season.

In February and April, the students had two, three-day trips to Mammoth. The group stayed in the St. Moritz Villa Condominiums.

Ride The Wild Surf

Waiting for an outside set, Jeff Blanco rests before paddling out further past the breakers.

As a popular surf spot, Rock Pile entices Jeff Blanco to "drop in."

After a rollercoaster set on his board, Chris Blanco comes in for a breather.

It's fun. It's wet. It's wild. It's the surf club. The main purpose? To have fun and surf. They get together an average of three weekends a month. Locally they surf at Pacific Beach. But often their trips have taken them as far as Mexico for competitions. Are they good? They placed second overall as a team in the Mexico competition. Are they serious? How many clubs do you know that spend their lunch time discussing the weather and surf? They pick up the phone, call surf line, decide where to go and when, then head for the beach, and surf, surf, surf.

A Battle Of The Minds

By Kim White

A contest of a different sort, the Academic League battled with the mind. Training took place at lunch and included fielding questions ranging from Greek mythology to deriving equations. The teams were divided by grade and several intra-class scrimmages were held. However, real matches were against other schools with similar squads.

The league was coached by Jan Coulsby whose obvious delight in hearing a right answer made the students try harder to respond correctly.

Under the continued guidance of Mr. Coulsby the league will become stronger contenders in the Grossmont Academic League.

Mike Nichols, Mike Hinson, and Doug Easterly listen to the question asked by Mr. Coulsby while Serena Blanks and Kristine Stanzick discuss the answer to the previous question.

An Integral Business

The Calculus Club was formed by students who excel in mathematics. The newly formed club hoped that it was the beginning of an academic era.

Club activities included using free periods to evaluate complex integrals and derivatives, and members also tutored other math students.

Membership was limited to those who could solve integrals and pass the chapter four test of Calculus by Howard Anton with a passing grade of C- or better. Members were eager to provide and grade exams for potential members. The club ended the year with fourteen members. Mike Nichols was the club president ably assisted by thirteen vice presidents. The club's preponderance of vice presidents was for the purpose of allowing each member to look prestigious on their college applications. Advisor Scott Lieberknecht said he was glad to see an interest in and recognition for academics.

This recognition and interest can only serve to strengthen the reputation El Capitan has amassed as an academic institution.
